MORE THAN 100 DROWN

17 Injured As Fireworks Stand Explodes

At least 497 persons died violently throughout the nation during the three-day Fourth of July week-end holiday.

It was one of the most costly Independence day celebrations since 1931. Since that year fatalities had exceeded 400 only once—in 1937—when Fourth of July deaths reached an all-time high of 560.

The steadily mounting list gave every indication it would equal, if not surpass, that of last year despite an intensive safety campaign which 28 organizations, with a membership of 46,000,000, had carried on in every state.

Automobiles as usual topped the casualty list with a total of 246. One hundred and twenty-two persons drowned. The remainder died in shootings, from falls, and freak accidents. There were only three fireworks fatalities, two in Virginia and one in Pennsylvania.

California and Illinois headed the state-by-state list of casualties with a total of 43 each. New York had 42, and Pennsylvania 37. South Carolina, Nebraska and Montana were the only states which reported no violent deaths during the long holiday.

Seventeen persons were injured, several seriously, last night at Portage Park, Chicago, when a huge mass of fireworks exploded prematurely. A crowd of about 20,000 persons was thrown into a

MART CONTINUES ITS SPEEDY PACE AFTER VACATION

NEW YORK, July 5—(UP)—Trading continued at a fast pace on the stock market today when the Exchange reopened after the Independence Day holiday week-end.

Initial blocks of 1,000 to 4,000 shares appeared and in the early dealings the tape was several minutes behind. It caught up before 10:30, however, and the market quieted on an outbreak of profit-taking which sent the whole list down. Montgomery Ward touched $46.62½ off $2 from Saturday's close and off $1.12½ from the opening price. Other sections had declined ranging to more than $1 a share.

The lows were touched about a half hour after the opening. Thereafter the market steadied and showed signs of resuming the rise. Support was noted for the motors, rails and metals. Automobile shares were particularly active at the start with 4,000-share blocks appearing in General Motors and Packard. General Motors began at $39, unchanged, sagged to $37.75 and then rallied slightly.

A decline in steels was arrested when U. S. Steel touched $59.25 off $1.62½. Anaconda opened unchanged at $34.87½ and then dipped to $34.25. Other coppers were narrow movers, aided by a rise to 10 cents a pound in the export copper price and another ¼ cent rise in scrap copper here.

Gen. Falkenhausen Ordered To Return To Berlin Against Will

SHANGHAI, July 5—(UP)—Gen. Alexander Von Falkenhausen, chief of the German military mission to China, left Hankow today with the last of his associates at the order of the German Nazi government. Dispatches from Hankow, reporting the departure, asserted that the German military chieftain said in his farewell message:

"I feel sure that China is gaining final victory and that Japan will fall both in war and peace." The statement caused a sensation here. It was known that Falkenhausen left only with great reluctance at the peremptory order of his government. Also it was reported from Hankow that after the first order for his departure, he had told foreign military attaches that he would not leave China unless he was threatened with prosecution in Germany. July Futures Over Cent Lower Tuesday

The great influx of wheat on national markets was blamed Tuesday for a 3-cent drop in the cash offer to farmers on the Circleville market. The price offered Saturday was 64 cents; Tuesday it was 61. Elevator operators were kept going at top speed as farmers were rushing their threshing and combining. Combined wheat, operators said, is still showing a higher degree of moisture than threshed wheat.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5—(UP)—Almost five and one-half million bushels of wheat, a new record for receipts at this world's greatest primary cash wheat market, reached here today and the price sagged under the heavy influx.

Record receipts were reported from other wheat marts in the Southwest, especially those at Wichita and Amarillo. Frenzied scenes occurred on the Kansas City Board of Trade as buyers fought to place big orders for the cereal that has an exceptionally high protein value and is considered of choice quality.

BARNES LEASES RINGLING SHOW, BEGINS CIRCUIT

SARASOTA, Fla., July 5 — (UP)—The big show, under the same canvas but with a new name, went back on the road today to complete the circus swing halted by labor difficulties.
Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, under the lease and the name of the Al G. Barnes show, headed North last night to appear in most of the towns the "greatest show on earth" has been scheduled to play.
The Barnes show is a subsidiary of the huge Ringling enterprises. Under the reorganized setup, in which most of the big show units will take part, managers of the circus apparently hoped to avoid labor trouble similar to that which bogged the circus down in a strike at Scranton, Pa. 10 days ago.
Gargantua, the gorilla, the Christiana act, the animals of Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" display and other Ringling attractions will join the Barnes show at Redfield, S. D.
The augmented show will follow "as far as possible" the Ringling circus' original itinerary. Ringling General Manager George W. Smith said.

TROTH OF YEAR SEEN AS IDEAL

PASADENA, Cal., July 5 — (UP)—A survey of 800 married couples would indicate that love at first sight is a serious handicap to a happy marriage, according to Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Los Angeles County Institute of Family Relations.

The next most serious handicap, it would seem from his report, is where the engagement period runs too long.
Of the 800 marriages included in the survey, 374 admittedly were unhappy couples and 436 were enjoying a measure of happiness.

The deductions made from the survey would indicate that on the average the happiest couples are those that wait two years before engagement and then another year before marrying.

Unhappy Average Struck
On the other hand, the unhappy couples investigated showed that they had known each other for only about 20 months before engagement and then seven and a half months before marriage.

The more happier couples were those who were acquainted for 28 months before becoming engaged and then who waited for a year or more before marrying.

Nearly 20 per cent were acquainted for more than five years before they became engaged.

Marriages on the spur of the moment without any engagement occurred eight times as often among the unhappy couples as among those that turned out better.

Snap Decisions Rued
These were not marriages at sight, for the couples had known each other for a year or two, but had merely made up their minds suddenly to get married. There were 140 unhappy couples in this no-engagement group.

Five of the unhappy couples reported love at first sight and, although they waited from one to 11 months before marriage, the "love at first sight and lived happily ever afterward" at fiction fame, failed to work.

The longest betrothal among the unhappy couples was four years and among the happy couples 12 years.

The python is non-poisonous but has long, sharp teeth. Dr. Theodore Reed insisted that Buck take hospital treatment to guard against infection. The snake was brought from Singapore in 1935 to Buck's zoo at Massapequa, near here. It had refused to eat and was getting thin. Buck decided on forcible feeding.

DREDGE TO AID DEEP SEA WORK

MONTEREY, Cal., July 5 — (UP)—Working of undersea gold and oil deposits at a depth of 1,000 feet has been made possible by the building here of a 10-ton deep sea dredge which has been put to a successful test.

The dredge, which was built at a cost of $50,000, is the result of 20 years of experimentation by John C. Williams, San Francisco engineer, and operates at a depth 10 times greater than heretofore possible.

So important is the perfection of the dredge considered, that its first demonstration was attended by officials of the navy, leading university experts, and engineers of some of the leading construction concerns of the United States.

Navy Sends Engineer
Among these were Commander R. D. Lukens, of the Coast and Geodetic Survey; Lieut. John J. Scheibler, one of the construction corps of the Mare Island navy yard; Prof. E. P. Leslie of the engineering department of Stanford University, and R. A. Slater, assistant chief engineer of the Westinghouse Electric Company.

It is believed the dredge will open up possibilities of entirely new and undeveloped undersea wealth. It is also expected to play an important role in its application to industry and undersea projects of all kinds.

On the occasion of its first test, it brought up for the first time in the world, appreciable quantities of sea bottom taken at a depth of 700 feet.

Numerous engineering difficulties had to be overcome to make the dredge workable.

Water Used For Energy
The underlying principle in its operation is the conversion of the hydro-static head of water into kinetic energy which takes the dead weight of the water and changes it into live power.

When the dredge is lowered, the jaws are held open by a seal over the valves which, when the dredge reaches the ocean bottom, automatically opens, allowing an inrush of water. This water forces up the pistons and closes the jaws on the dredge full of sea bottom that has been taken in.

The natural weight of the water—terrible at this depth—also is utilized to force a heavy grease around the pistons, and the grease, being thicker and less fluid than water, clamps around them and keeps the water out. This obviates the necessity of ordinary packing around the piston.

Experts, who watched the first demonstration of the dredge, declared that this new packing principle also will have an effect upon almost every piston and cylinder mechanism that has to work in any kind of fluid.

Blackmail, Threat to Kill Londoner Heard in Barbara's Court Contest

250,000 on the Count but later decided it might be better to make him an outright gift of $250,000.
After all the charges, outlined first by Sir Patrick Hastings, the Countess's chief counsel, in an opening statement, and then by William M. Mitchell, her regular lawyer, in testimony, Mitchell admitted under cross-examination that the Count said:
"Despite everything I still love her and always will."
"But at the same time he said words to another effect, too," added Mitchell.
"Did he say he had never looked at another woman and had always been sweet on his own wife?" asked Norman Birkett, for the Count.
"Yes," admitted Mitchell.
"You agree that there were absolutely no grounds whatever for divorce?"
"Absolutely none," said Mitchell. Hastings, for the Countess, read the letter, written June 17, in which the Countess broke with her husband. It was:
"Dear Count:
"Your attitude during the last year, and especially during the last few weeks, has made it impossible for me to go on living with you. I want to say I hope you are well and that I want you to have a happy life, just as I want one for myself. Together this is impossible, as I realize now. I do not want you to have hard feelings about me and I have not got any about you. One thing I want to ask you, Please do not ask or try to see me again. I shall be reasonable and I know you will also. With all my best wishes,
"Always affectionately,
"Barbara."
Written by Lawyer
"Did you phrase that letter?" Birkett asked Mitchell.
"Yes, but she altered it."
Later Birkett asked:
"I am sorry to have to put this,

but did the Count say, 'I have ample evidence that Winfield house is not a suitable place for my boy to be brought up?'"
"Yes," Mitchell replied, adding that the Count had told him he had information from a former chauffeur "regarding certain happenings at Winfield house."
"Did that refer to the gentleman spoken of by my learned friend?" asked Birkett.
"Yes," Mitchell replied.
Countess Barbara, clad in a black suit and wearing dark gray furs, sat just behind the dock in which Haugwitz-Reventlow, handsome Danish nobleman who is her second husband, sat—(by special permission—defendants ordinarily stand) and scribbled notes on the testimony against him.
It was perhaps the first time that $40,000,000 was represented in the musty little court room where drunk-and-disorderly cases provide the greater part of the normal day's budget.
Haugwitz-Reventlow was charged with "using threats towards the complainant whereby she apprehends that she goes in danger of her life or of some bodily harm that he will do or cause to be done to her."
Hastings, former attorney general and regarded as perhaps the country's leading trial lawyer, outlined to Sir Rollo F. Graham-Campbell, chief magistrate, the case in which the Countess charged that she had been threatened by her count.
As usual, Hastings, his eyes blazing under his shaggy brows, was merciless.
He opened with the statement by June 2 last it was found that family life was becoming practically impossible between the Count and Countess, and that a separation was discussed.
"The defendant is a very peculiar man according to the evidence you will hear," he continued.

KAI-SHEK LOSES AID OF GERMANS

Gen. Falkenhausen Ordered To Return To Berlin Against Will

Chinese troops Gen. Falkenhausen was reported to have expressed unending loyalty and sympathy with the Chinese army, and to have said that he regretted his government's recall left him no alternative to a return to Germany. It was reported that even this statement brought him a stern reprimand from Germany.

Twenty remaining German army men who had been advising the Chinese were given a farewell luncheon at Hankow Saturday by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The Chinese government consented to the departure of the Germans only after exhausting every means to persuade them to stay. The Nazi government was so angry at the attitude of the government that it ordered its ambassador, Dr. Oskar Trautmann, to return to Berlin, and dispatches from there quoted diplomatic quarters as expressing belief that he would not return, or be replaced, for a considerable time.

Falkenhausen's departure, and that of his associates, was admittedly a severe blow to China. Since 1934 Falkenhausen had been advising first on the reorganization of the Chinese army into an efficient, well armed body, and secondly on the strategy and tactics of the war.

Incidentally, it was against the urgent advice of Falkenhausen that the Chinese defended Shanghai.

SOCIAL SECURITY ACT TO INCLUDE FARMERS ASKED

WASHINGTON, July 5—(UP)—Revisions in the Social Security Act to bring millions of agricultural workers under its provisions and to pay larger benefits to those already covered will be placed high on the "must" list of legislation for the next congress.

President Roosevelt, who is leading the drive for corrective measures for the act, has recommended certain changes to Social Security Board Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer and asked his group to prepare revisions before the first of January when the 76th congress convenes.

Altmeyer now is in Europe examining methods of dealing with transient workers. Abroad these employees—the most difficult for the board to keep track of—are checked through a stamp system. A similar system probably will be recommended to congress.

SEWAGE PLANT OPENING TO AID RIVER'S PURITY

Engineers Estimate Scioto
To Show Improvement in Short Time

LONG TROUBLE ENDED

Columbus Treatment Station
On Full Power

Steady improvement in the condition of the Scioto river through Pickaway county should be noticed within the next few years through the opening of the new $3,700,000 sewage treatment works at Columbus.

Pollution of the last 18 years, caused by an inadequate plant, will be ended. Full power was turned into the treatment plant last week. The plant will place a clear liquid, 95 percent pure, into the river instead of raw or partially treated sewage. It is estimated that a year will be required to show a marked improvement in the stream's condition.

Ordered Issued in 1927

The state board of health issued the order to the city to halt pollution of the stream on Sept. 9, 1927. From that time until 1934 there were controversies on the location of the plant, the type and finances.

The public works section of the national industry recovery act in 1933 made possible the financing for the plant. Voters approved issuing bonds for the city's share. First bids were opened in 1934. The last major contract was granted two years later.

A $250,000 gas engine generator unit is to be completed by Fall to convert available sewer gas into electrical power, saving the city between $45,000 and $50,000 a year in operating costs. Funds for the plant operation will be obtained under a sewer rental tax based on the amount of water placed in sanitary sewers. Forty-five men are employed at the plant.

With Circleville starting construction of a disposal plant to treat the city's wastes all indications point to a much more wholesome stream through central Ohio before many more years.

Eastern Star Inspection

At the annual inspection conducted Tuesday evening, Purity Chapter No. 65, Order of the Eastern Star, was honored by the presence of the Grand Worthy Matron of Ohio, Miss Jessie Peck, of Fostoria.

Nearly 200 assembled here for the occasion including 112 visitors from more than 20 other chapters. A lovely six o'clock dinner was served in the church dining room by the M. E. Ladies' Aid Society. The dining room was decorated with the colors of Eastern Star and Summer flowers. The chapter room of the Masonic Temple was also decorated with the official colors of the order and flowers.

The meeting began at 7:30 o'clock with an opening march in which the officers took their respective stations as follows: Mrs. Mabel K. Dick, Worthy Matron pro tem; Roy W. Griffith, Worthy Patron; Miss Leah Binns, Associate Matron pro tem; and Robert Kirk, Associate Patron.

Miss Peck, Worthy Grand Matron was introduced by the conductor, Mrs. Ruth Taylor, of Clarksville. Mrs. Dick presented her the chapter gavel and invited her to preside. She introduced Mrs. Marion Roth, as her Deputy Grand Matron of the 23rd District of Ohio. The degree staff formed the letter "M" in a drill number and gave special honor to Mrs. Roth by presenting individual roses by the various officers.

Mrs. Dick was instructed to preside during the inspection, using the personally owned gavel of Miss Peck.

The Worthy Matron introduced the visiting notables of the Grand Chapter. They included, besides Miss Peck and Mrs. Roth, the following:

Mrs. Hazel Beach, of London, Past Grand Matron and Grand Treasurer.

Ski School or Divorce in Reno?

Paulette Goddard

Paulette and Charlie in other days

COULD Paulette Goddard's mission to Reno, Nev., the divorce capital, be a divorce from Charlie Chaplin? Or is it to establish a ski school as she says it is? Friends and movie fans wonder as the actress takes the news spotlight with her Reno engagement. There still has been no confirmation that Chaplin and Miss Goddard are married. Her name has been linked with the comedian since 1934, when he brought her before the film public as his leading woman. Chaplin took Miss Goddard and her mother, as chaperone, on a world tour aboard his million-dollar yacht four years ago. It was at that time she and Chaplin were rumored married at sea.

cleville, Past Grand Matron and Grand Trustee.

C. C. Chappelle, of Circleville, Past Grand Patron.

Mrs. Fairy Gingery, of Columbus, Associate Grand Conductress. Mrs. Lydia Alexander, of Columbus, Grand Representative to Georgia.

Mrs. May Hill, of Williamsport, Grand Representative to Indiana. Mrs. Dave M. Campbell, of Wilmington, Deputy Grand Matron of the 21st District.

Mrs. William K. Link, of Sandusky, Deputy Grand Matron of the Fifth District.

Mrs. Dick then introduced the visiting worthy matrons and worthy patrons and gave a personal greeting to past matrons and patrons of Purity Chapter.

A beautiful vocal solo number was presented by Mrs. Lillian Harbaugh Hosier of Ashville. Mrs. Ervin Leist of Circleville accompanied her.

The presentation of initiatory degrees followed. Mrs. Stella Roush of Chillicothe, Past Deputy Grand Matron and Mrs. Marjorie Jacoby of Wilmington acted as candidates pro tem.

In the report of the inspecting officer given by Miss Peck, Purity Chapter was awarded the highest grade of "Excellent." At the close of her address Miss Peck rendered a beautiful vocal solo, "My Task". She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Lou Murrell, of Wilmington, who also acted as prompt organist throughout the inspecting ceremonies.

On behalf of Purity Chapter, Mrs. Dick presented lovely gift tokens to Miss Peck and Mrs. Roth, who responded graciously.

Now that we're gettin' well along in the Summer, everybody's tryin' to pick the best place to spend his vacation. I want'a tell you—it don't make a bit of difference what kind of a place you pick, your enjoyment is gonna depend entirely on what experience you have after you get there.

The other day I took a friend of mine out to a golf course that has a little creek winding back and forth across the fairway. On the first tee, he knocked the ball safely on the other side and he turned to me with a light in his eyes, and says "It certainly is wonderful to play on a course where there's a nice, cool stream winding across it like this."

On the very next hole, he sliced his ball and it went in the creek. He glared at me and says "How in the world do you expect a man to play golf on a course that's got a sewer in the middle of it!"

Hughes Plans to Start Ocean Hop in Two Weeks

NEW YORK, July 5.—(UP)—Howard Hughes, 32-year-old millionaire sportsman and airplane speed champion, said today that he would take off within two weeks on a flight to Paris and possibly around the world in his twin-motored monoplane which he landed at Floyd Bennett field at 6:38 last night after a seven-hour flight from Wichita, Kan.

Four assistants will accompany him across the ocean to publicize New York's World Fair in 1939. They plan a comparatively slow and safe flight, averaging about 155 miles an hour by throttling down the plane motors to 450 of their 1,100 horsepower each to conserve gasoline.

At such a speed, they could reach Paris in 24 hours.

On the flight from Kansas, speed was reduced to 135 miles an hour to test gasoline consumption, which was found to be 70 gallons an hour. The plane's fuel capacity is 1,750 gallons.

Five assistants accompanied Hughes to New York in the plane: Lieut. Hiram Thurlow, navigator and co-pilot; Harry Connor, co-pilot; Richard Stoddart, radio operator; Glenn Odekirk and Dale Power, engineers. Thurlow, Connor and Stoddart, and one other not yet chosen, will make the ocean flight.

Thousands at Field

Several thousand were waiting at the field to greet the young Texan, who inherited an oil and tool manufacturing fortune from his father and added to it with successful motion picture productions. He waved wearily to them as he alighted, dressed in his usual careless manner, tieless, a frayed shirt open at the collar, a disheveled suit and a battered felt hat.

His plane, a special Lockheed 14, has a cruising range of 4,700 miles and special features such as three radio transmitters and a Sperry gyropilot which controls the plane automatically, and which he expects to use extensively on the ocean flight.

He tested the radio receiver on the flight from Burbank, Calif., where he left Sunday, and Wichita, and said he had picked up a station in Honolulu, 5,000 miles away.

His plans beyond flying to Paris, he said, were indefinite. He has obtained permission to visit several European countries and has considered continuing around the world, via Moscow and Fairbanks, Alaska.

He planned to spend the next few days studying weather maps

FONDA AND CARLISLE

Bing Crosby and Bob Burns will get out the red carpet for such visiting firemen as Henry Fonda, Mary Carlisle and Dales Frantz, the pianist, on Thursday, July 7. Fonda and Miss Carlisle are the representatives of the movies and Dales Frantz of the concert contingent. With the Paul Taylor chorus and John Scott Trotter's orchestra the full hour show will be broadcast over the NBC red network at 9 p. m.

Henry Fonda is fresh from a screen triumph in "Blockade," for a Crosby interview and any other piece of drollery which happens to be lying around waiting for a broadcast.

Dales Frantz, (it is Mr. Frantz), the distinguished concert pianist, has played concerts in most of the leading cities of the world, both solo concerts and as soloist with the important symphony orchestra.

SEASHORE CAMP CONSIDERED FOR BRITISH FELONS

LONDON (UP)—British convicts soon may go to the seaside to work and play.

Under the home secretary's latest scheme to add to the "attractions" of prison life, a big camp will be built on the South Coast, where good conduct men "on their honor" will be able to relax—and work—away from the atmosphere of prison walls.

Convicts chosen to have a holiday at the state's expense will have no more supervision than that ordinarily given to navvies engaged on road or other reconstruction work.

After a working day of eight hours "guests of the camp" will spend their evenings in rooms devoted to entertainment, writing and reading. They will not be permitted to leave the camp at night.

BABIES GAINING

ONE pretty good way of measuring the progress of civilization is by the decline in the babies' death rate. By this standard we're doing pretty well.

In New York City, which is not exactly typical but will serve as an illustration, thirty years ago one baby out of every eight died before it was one year old.
Twenty years ago the rate had declined to one in ten. Six years ago it was only one in 18. Now it is a little less than that, in spite of depression and the unhealthy consequences.

In short, babies in America today have more than twice the chance of survival that they had a generation ago, and one-third better chance than they had at the beginning of the depression.

This progress comes through better medical knowledge, better parental care and better food, with special emphasis on milk.

GENTLE BREEZES

OUT of the many winds of business comment, here is a statement that seems unusually apt and reassuring. It is from a business expert of Western Reserve University, in the form of a "Good News Letter."

There is nothing to be alarmed about in the recent big rise in stocks, he says.
There have been times when such a spectacular rise was doubtful because it was accompanied by bad news. This time there is no such adulteration; the news is mostly good. The next six months look better than the last six, and the stock market confirms it.

He speaks of the evidence of abundant cash in people's pockets, as shown by heavy attendance at sporting events; steel production well above 1932 levels, with scrap prices rising; a doubling of the life insurance purchased in June over that of last year; sales of cotton goods up sharply and ahead of production; consumption now surpassing production in nearly every line.

"Unlike 1930-31," he adds, "we shut down very quickly this time thereby bringing closer the time when production must increase again. The inevitable revival will not manifest itself in all industries at the same time. Construction often sweeps the country by storm, but expansion floats on gentle breezes. That is the nature of the business cycle."

A nation can't make itself rich by building up stocks, but it makes people feel richer.

ECONOMISTS SEE RECOVERY

WASHINGTON — Following a month's exhaustive study of underlying factors, inner council economists have reached the following confidential conclusions regarding the business outlook:

1. That the downward spiral is now definitely in reverse and that recovery will come much sooner than they had previously predicted — probably by Fall.
2. That the pace of recovery, once it does come, will be rapid rather than slow.
3. That the pattern of the current climb out of the recession is following the lines of similar situations in 1921, 1924 and 1932, when the production of non-durable (consumer) goods started upward while the production of durable goods still lagged.

THE REASONS WHY

The New Dealers base their cheery report on these determining factors:

1. With the exception of the railroads, the financial structure of business generally is sound. Banks and insurance companies are untouched and farmers have suffered no serious impairment, despite the decline in agricultural income.
2. Consumer spending has been relatively well maintained: first, because individual resources have not been exhausted on a wide scale as they were in 1931-33; and second, because consumers have not developed a hoarding complex, due chiefly to the existence of the Federal Deposit Insurance system, eliminating fear of bank failures.
3. The localization of major declines in manufacturing, mining and related industries—which account for more than half of the rise in unemployment since last September—prevented the spread of a panic psychology throughout the country.
4. Liquidation of the large, high-priced inventories of consumer goods that were on hand when the recession developed last Fall. Shelves generally have been well cleaned out and with demand increasing, buyers are placing new orders with manufacturers.
5. High prices, which played, a leading role in precipitating the recession, have been materially reduced, thereby stimulating both retail and wholesale buying.

The economists placed great stress on the last item. As long as prices continued high, they declared, buying continued to decline, but as soon as prices began to tumble, buying began to revive. This explains why the price-cut announcement of U. S. Steel was received with jubilation by the White House group.

STEEL PRICES

At the root of the far-reaching price cut announced by U. S. Steel was a case of sheer necessity.

the Nazis are barring Jews from race tracks, book-makers and betting machines.

DIET AND HEALTH

How Various Arthritis Forms Are Treated

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

SUMMER is a good time for ar-thritics generally. Their pains are lessened, and their joints loosen up so they can get around. This is an indication that the best treatment is heat. And even in the summer the use of heat will help the natural curative powers of the weather and the sun.

There are so many different kinds of arthritis that no general statement about treatment can be made which will fit all cases. Then

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

any particular kind of arthritis may occur in different degrees of severity. A man wrote me recently asking for a diet of arthritis, adding that he was unable to get about except on crutches. Well, diet is not calculated to do any good when such advanced structural changes have taken place. Manipulation and orthopedic surgery should be used in such cases.

There are two general kinds of chronic arthritis — one in which there is an overgrowth of bone around the joints and the other in which there is atrophy of the joint structures. Most cases that one sees belong to the former type; it is the common rheumatism of middle age and old age. Usually it affects the bones of the hands or feet with possibly one or two other joints, and usually it is not severe or crippling. When it affects the spine, however, it is very disabling.

The atrophic type affects young people and is much more severe.
It may finally involve every joint in the body.

In treatment of the bony overgrowth type, the main reliance is on mechanical manipulations or heat treatments, or both.

Diet has very little influence on this form of arthritis. My readers are forever writing in to ask me to send them the diet I recommended for arthritis. Now I have never recommended a diet of any kind for arthritis, for I have never seen any diet influence a case either for good or bad. When the patient is overweight, reduction diets should be planned, and when the patient is undernourished a rich nutritious diet should be given, but that is not a specific diet. Some have recommended a high vitamin, low fat diet, the vitamins, especially Vitamin B, being added in concentrated form, but the results of this diet do not seem to me to be any different from any other.

The use of the products of the ductless glands, especially thyroid extract, is highly recommended by some. Inasmuch as thyroid increases the temperature of the body this can possibly be said to be a form of heat treatment.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

H. P.: "Please tell me what is a tic (in plain English, shaking of the head)?"

Answer: Tics are of various kinds. They are spasmodic muscular movements—sometimes the face, sometimes the shoulders, sometimes the whole body. They appear to result in a habit which gets ingrained in the nervous system and is difficult to cure. It requires a tremendous amount of will power and practice to cure these movements.

G. M.: "Is there any way of straightening hammertoes, or crooked toes, either permanently or temporarily?"

Answer: Yes. All orthopedic surgeons are proficient in such treatment.

TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD McCURDY WELCH

Written for CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Paige, a serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live.
Determined to show Julian she has stamina, Noel gives up a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100.00 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 3

AFTER SHE had paid off the servants at Stone Gate and attended to other bills, Noel had a little over a hundred dollars in her billfold. She smiled to think that it was almost the same amount her grandfather had had when he sailed to the United States to lay the foundation for the Shayne fortune.

Frankie, Noel's aunt, was a pretty frivolous woman of middle-age, with touched-up hair and a face from which all the lines had been carefully erased by skillful beauty technicians.

Just now she was in the hands of her maid, lying back among the cushions of the chaise longue, having a pedicure. Why a pedicure, Noel did not know. Perhaps merely to kill time. But Noel loved her aunt devotedly in spite of all her little affectations.

"Come in, darling," Frankie greeted her in her chirrupy voice.
Then when she saw Noel wearing the cheap tweed suit and linen blouse, she gave a little scream.
"What is it, darling? A masque-rade?"

Noel lit a cigarette and glanced at the maid. Frankie dismissed her at once and turned again to Noel, her eyes averted with curiosity. "Is it some kind of a game?"

Noel hesitated. She hadn't quite decided how to break the news to Frankie, who was quite capable of protesting strenuously whenever she disapproved of anything Noel proposed to do. But in spite of her little fluttery ways, Frankie did have an understanding nature.

So Noel decided to take the plunge. "If you had fallen in love with a man," she began, "and he practically told you that you were a parasite and a useless cumberof the earth, what would you do?"

Frankie sat up on the chaise longue, her faded blue eyes wide.
"Darling, did someone actually dare—?" She stopped and drew her lips together in a straight line.
"Well, I wouldn't let him get away with it. I'd make him take it back word for word."

"That's exactly what I'm going to do," Noel told her. "I'm going to stay right here, get a job and show him that I can make my own living as well as he can make his."

Frankie clasped her fragile hands. "But, darling, it all sounds very romantic and thrilling, and I always did think you had some of your grandfather's stubbornness and spirit. But what on earth would I do at Aix-les-Bains without you. It would just be too tiresome for words," she finished plaintively.

"You can play five-suit bridge," Noel reminded.

Frankie brightened at that. She was passionately devoted to bridge. "Is it that too, too devastating young doctor, Julian Paige?" Frankie asked after a minute's thought.

Noel crushed out her cigarette and sank into a chair. "Yes, it is.
I suppose I might as well admit the truth."

"He's precious," Frankie said with a smile. "And he's so different from all the other kind of men you have known. He has strength and—there's something really fine about him, I think," she stopped for a moment then added, "but, really, darling, he hadn't any right in the world to say things like that to you. It sounds a bit prigish, I'm afraid."

Once in her room, she hardly looked around the dingy quarters, but tumbled into the hard, rather lumpy bed, and soon fell asleep.

The next morning when she awakened and her eyes fell upon the discolored wall paper, the rusty grate, and the cheap wooden furniture, she opened her eyes wide, startled.

Then remembrance came back.
She brushed back her curls and smiled, fighting back a feeling of

She brushed back her curls and smiled.

Noel shook her head. "No, he's not like that at all. He's just—" but her voice failed her. She couldn't tell anybody, not even Frankie, just how she felt about Julian Paige.

"Anyway," Frankie went on more complacently, "you'll soon show him he was all wrong, won't you?" Then she added, a note of anxiety coming back to her voice,
"You won't be getting into any trouble, will you? I leave you here, will you, Noel?"

"Of course I won't," Noel answered blithely. "I'm going to have the time of my life."

"At least you won't be bored," Frankie said, her voice again plaintive. "If you only knew how dreadfully hard it is to keep from being bored these days, even at Monte Carlo."

"You'll meet your friends. You'll have a nice time," Noel tried to reassure her.

At last Frankie's qualms were set at rest. A few hours later, she and Noel bade each other an affectionate goodbye. It was, of course, only a lark, Frankie told herself confidently. Noel had been restless of late. Perhaps it was time she felt seriously in love. And it wouldn't take long for her to win the man she wanted, for it was Frankie's opinion that there wasn't alive in the world a man who could remain indifferent to Noel's rose and golden beauty and her gay spirits. So she departed happily for California.

It was 10 o'clock that night before Noel was ready to start on the first lap of her adventure.
Stone Gate was closed, the servants gone.

Noel took a taxi to the dingy rooming house on Court street where she had engaged a room under the name of Noel Doran. She gave the driver a dollar tip, then suddenly realized that since she was now a working girl, and entirely dependent on what she earned for her living, she had no right to be using taxicabs, much less tipping the driver dollar bills!

But she wouldn't forget again.
She was beginning to learn already.

Once in her room, she hardly looked around the dingy quarters,
but tumbled into the hard, rather lumpy bed, and soon fell asleep.

The next morning when she

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Every time the moment approaches for congress to adjourn the cry is raised that the lawmakers' duty is to quit just as soon as possible in order to get the agony over and give business a chance to recuperate.

The senators and representatives join in this clamor.

One might think that they would hate to admit that the country must continue in a state of pessimistic uncertainty as long as they linger in Washington.

It is understandable that the end of a legislative session comes as a relief to the president. Congress is a worry to him, jabbering on Capitol Hill, finding fault with his policies and quibbling as to the merits of his recommendations.

But the congressmen themselves? Why shouldn't they like it?

FEAR GRIPS THEM

Well, for one thing, in a campaign year, like this one, all the representatives and the one-third of the senators whose seats are at stake, want to get home in a hurry, to attend to being renominated and re-elected.

Moreover, a goodly number of them are glad to escape from the capital to avoid having to vote on questions which they are none too sure how their constituents want them to vote. If such questions can be shelved until next session at least it's a respite.

A politician's life, like a policeman's, after all is not an easy one.

SOME LIVE IN CAPITAL

By the way—
Some senators and representatives become so addicted to Washington and its suburbs that I wouldn't think their home folk any longer would consider them local residents.

I know several western senators who have permanent homes in the capital or estates in nearby Virginia or Maryland. Hereabouts, in effect, is where they live. Yet they speak of balliwicks 1,000 miles or so removed from here. How can such a statesman miss losing touch with his original neighborhood's interests?

Quite awhile ago, returning from a western trip, I wanted to stop off for an interview with a representative from western Pennsylvania.
Congress was in recess and I took it for granted that I should find him in the town he nominally hails from.

Getting off there, I had the darnedest time locating his residence. Finally I inquired at the police station. The police were puzzled, too, but ultimately they directed me to his address.

I applied there. "Why, yes,"

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

A PERENNIAL border which gives continuous bloom is the ambition of every true gardener. However, this is almost impossible without the addition of annuals to fill the vacant spaces left by spring blooming bulbs and by perennials which die down after flowering.

As shown in the Garden-Graph,

Fruit Soup Is Unusual

EVERY RECIPE given here today is a request number.

Swedish fruit soup, for which we have had so many requests, calls for three-quarters of a cup of rice, one-half cup currants, one-half pound seedless raisins, one pound brown sugar, three quarts boiling water, one-half pound prunes, one lemon and three apples, cut in pieces, to yield 11 cups of soup. Cook all ingredients but the apples for one hour in an enameled kettle. Add the apples when nearly done. Add a cinnamon stick. Serve hot or cold.

Shrimp and celery chowder is another nice soup. Two tablespoons minute-cooking tapioca, three-quarters teaspoon salt, three cups scalded milk, two bouillon cubes (chicken flavor), one cup celery (diced), one cup water, three-quarters cup cooked diced potato one cup diced shrimp, three tablespoons butter, dash of cayenne and four pilot biscuits or hard crackers will serve four. Add tapioca and salt to milk, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Cook bouillon cubes, celery and water together three minutes. Add to tapioca mixture. Add shrimp, potato, butter and cayenne. Reheat. Before serving place pilot biscuits on top.

Ginger ale salad is a delectable dessert salad, especially nice for this time of year when one has to cater to jaded appetites. One package lemon or lime-flavored gelatin, one-half cup boiling water, one and one-half cups ginger ale, four tablespoons finely-chopped nut meats, four tablespoons finely-chopped celery, one tablespoon ginger (finely chopped, if desired), one cup assorted, diced fruits (apple, orange, cherries, grapes or canned pineapple), will make six portions. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water if necessary. Chill. Add ginger ale. When slightly thickened, fold in nuts, celery, ginger and fruits. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unfold on crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

ABANDONING ALL HOPE

LEADING YOUR partner's suit, when the declarer's no trump bids show emphatically that he doesn't fear it, is sometimes tantamount to abandoning all hope. If you have a pretty good suit of your own, the declarer may not have it very well stopped. If in addition you possess a likely side entry, your own suit affords much the better chance for successful defense.

North's 1-club bid here was overcalled by East with 1-Diamond and South injected a bid of 1-No Trump. North took this to 2-No Trumps and South to 3-No Trumps. West led the diamond 9, in response to his partner's bid, and declarer was able to drive out the two missing aces, limiting his losses to those two tricks.

If West had led his own suit, he might have defeated the contract. If South won the first spade and stated on clubs, a spade would have been returned and, if South held up, a third spade would have cleared the suit for West while still retaining the heart A, holding declarer to eight tricks. If so happens, however, that if South elected to drive out the heart A first, West's only entry would have been knocked out and 4-No Trumps could have been made. In any event, West's best choice was his own suit, as East had only overcalled once and South bid no trump despite the bid.

Two club tricks were cashed against South's 4-Spade contract and East then switched to a diamond. How should South try to make his contract?

Dr. G. D. Phillips Winner Of Country Club Trophy

Dr. G. D. Phillips, N. Court street, won the flag tournament and the Cryder Memorial mashie at the Pickaway Country Club during a week-end of heavy golfing. Phillips shot an 83 total on rounds of 41-42 and aided with a 12 handicap was able to make his drive on No. 19 before he planted his flag. His journey around the course was farther than any other golfer's.

The Cryder mashie, given by the late Sennet Cryder, is emblematic of the Fourth of July championship.

In second place was Willis Liston with 43-41, 84 with a 12 handicap and third was Glen Geib with 44-43, 14 handicap. Liston's flag was planted in the cup on the 18th green while Geib's was a yard away.

The course was crowded Sunday and Monday with perfect weather adding to the golfing interest. More ladies than usual took part in festivities during the holiday.

SOFTBALL LOOP LEAD AT STAKE IN 6:30 GAME

Eshelman Feeds To Defend Unblemished Slate In Fenton Game

Vantage points from which to watch the softball game this evening between the Eshelman Feeds and Fenton Cleaners will be at a premium since the winner has a chance to gain the first half title. The Eshelman outfit is on top the heap with a clean slate, but the Fenton boys are just a game behind.

The Eshelman boys meet Cain's food market Friday evening in another game that should be interesting. The Fentons have Glitt's food market still before them.

The game is scheduled at 6:30 o'clock and three umpires will be used.

Other games this week include: Wednesday, Circleville Oils vs. Bronzville Jollies; Thursday, Purina Feeds vs. Glitt's food market; Friday, Cain's food market vs. Eshelman Feeds.

Next week's games will wind up the first half race with the Fenton Cleaners and Glitt's food market playing Monday, and Circleville Oils and Blue Ribbon Dairy meeting on Tuesday.

GREYHOUND SETS ANOTHER MARK AT N. RANDALL

CLEVELAND, July 5—(UP)—Greyhound, one of the greatest horses in the history of harness racing, today was credited with his 14th world record.

Before a crowd of 10,000 fans at the North Randall track yesterday, Greyhound was timed in 26 4-5 seconds for the final quarter of his second mile. The old record was 27 seconds flat.

Greyhound also broke two track records as he won the $3,275 Championship Stallion Stake in straight heats. He was timed in 2:01 and 2:00 4-5. The old track record was 2:01 1-4, set in 1909 by Hamburg Belle.

The secondary feature of the day's program, the $1,000 Free-For-All, was won by Billy Direct, which was timed for his first mile in 2:00 3-5.

Other winners were: Prince Regent, driven by Vic Fleming, in the $5,000 Ohio Trotting stake; Balkan Hanover, driven by Short, in the Richman Brothers purse; and Her Ladyship, driven by Sep Palin, in a 2:13 pace race.

A. A. All-Stars to Meet Indianapolis

COLUMBUS, July 5—(UP)—A finely balanced combination of promising young players and tested veterans today formed the American Association's all-star team.

The all-star team will meet the league-leading Indianapolis team at Indianapolis July 14 in the fifth annual contest. Indianapolis won the right to entertain the game by beating Louisville last night and thereby remaining in first place on the deadline set for selection of the playing site.

Of the 18 players selected by the League's Baseball Writers' Association, 10 are stars without major league experience or who have had only short trials, while the other eight have spent one or more full seasons on the "main line."

Balloting was conducted by the unit system, with each city having one vote. The only players to be unanimous choices were Ted Williams, slugging 19-year-old outfielder of the Minneapolis Millers, and Vance Page, ace pitcher of the Indianapolis Indians.

Williams is the league's leading batsman with a mark of .334 and

TWO OF BOXING BOUTS BOOKED FOR SATURDAY

Two bouts have been booked for the first of a series of boxing shows to be conducted in the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium on Saturday evenings. The first show will be next Saturday.

Norman Aronson, who is conducting the bouts with Earl Hussey, announced that Warren Lutz and Homer Patrick will meet in one contest and Tiger Edgar Byrd and Don Morris will tangle in another.

Two more events are to be lined up.

REDLEGS BEHIND IN SIX GAMES LOSING GROUND

Pittsburgh Takes Double Victory As Infield Proves Sieve

CINCINNATI, July 5—(UP)—Bill McKechnie, hailed as a "miracle man" a week ago when he had the Cincinnati Reds within one and one-half games of the National league lead, today sought some magic formula that would snap his club out of a slump and halt its decline toward the second division.

The Reds fell eight full games behind the pace-setting New York Giants and to a point only two and one-half contests ahead of the fifth place Boston Bees yesterday when they dropped both ends of a double-header to the Pittsburgh Pirates by counts of 2 to 1 and 3 to 2.

The dual loss increased Cincinnati's losing streak to six games. The contests were the 13th and 14th of the campaign that the Reds have lost by the margin of a single run.

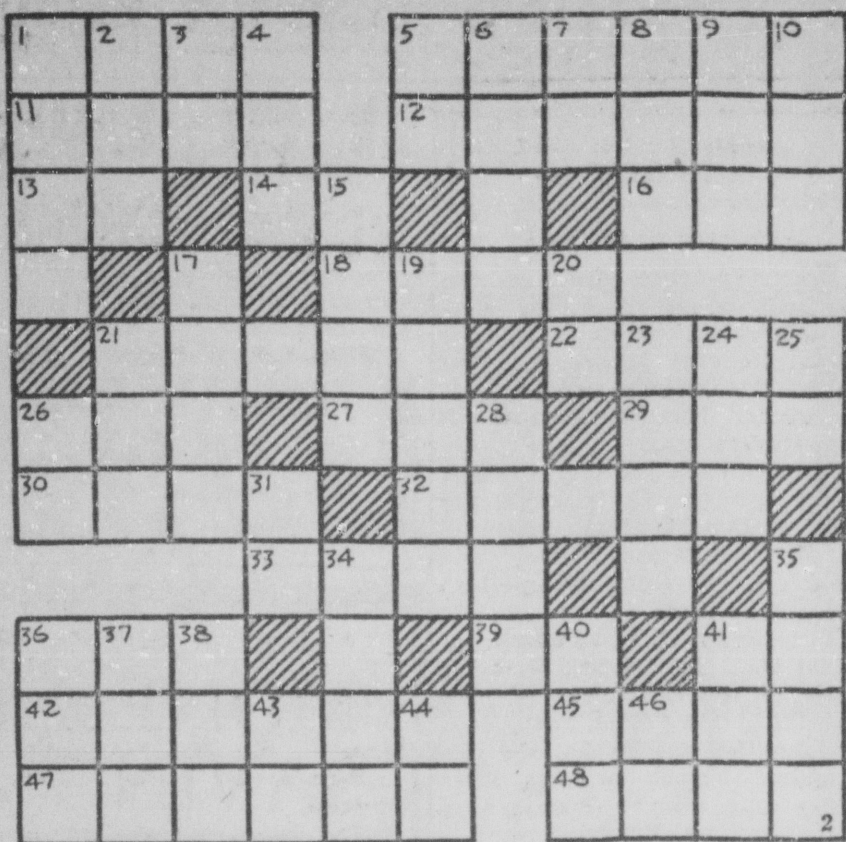

Cincinnati's disastrous slump is attributable directly to the collapse of the Redleg's inner defense. The club has committed at least one error in each of its last 13 games and in the last four contests has been charged with the amazing total of 14 misplays.

Errors Costly

In the opening encounter yesterday Cincinnati was guilty of one error and in the nightcap committed four costly bobbles.

A ball which rookie Justin Stein, filling in at short for the injured Billy Myers, lost in the sun and let drop for

ASHVILLE'S BIG CELEBRATION PROVES ANOTHER OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

AWARDS LISTED FOR CONTESTS IN TOWN'S FETE

Perfect Weather Makes Day One Of Best; 10,000 On Hand In Evening

By S. D. FRIDLEY

That big day, the Fourth of July at Ashville, is in the "history book" now and numbered among the past events. The weather could not have been improved on had it been made to order. The crowd of people was not lacking, being at least equal to any had in former years. The parade got away and on the march soon after 11 o'clock and in length was up to standard, but the expensive floats we have had in former years were lacking, but it was not at all bad at that.

The 4-H Club band comprised of members from the different Clubs over the county, under the direction of Miss Bernelle Goodman of Stoutsville, was a splendid organization of fine youngsters and knew their music and marching, and too, assisted in the concert given in the afternoon from the hand stand. Our own Community Band under the direction of Fred Hines, always ready to help and to do, did splendidly, the drum major with his lady escorts being a new feature in marching bands and was given a hand.

The antique outfits in the parade were features which attracted much attention. The old cart used by Woodford Ward and his escort was one which the late James Ward, 75 years ago, they said, used in driving to and from school he taught. Gladys Vause and Lulu Kuhlwein with their dilapidated buggy, 50 years ago a fine one owned by Leonard Kuhlwein, proved to be a third prize winner of these comic entries going to Campbell and McClurg and it earned what it got. Had it been possible these three outfits should have been awarded first prizes. The Future Farmers of America and the Duval Go Getters deserved special mention. The listed winners of parade prizes as listed by the judges, the Revs. Peters and Smith and A. B. Court-right are as follows:

Decorated bicycle: 1, Glenn Malone; 2, Bryan Grant; 3, Conrad Johnson.

Decorated auto: 1, Foreman Motor Sales; 2, Citizens Bank.

Comic entries: 1, Campbell and McClurg; 2, Woodford Ward; 3, Gladys Vause, Lulu Kuhlwein.

Best decorated rig with baby: 1, Sharon Mary Pontius; 2, Judith Ann Fosnaugh.

Best decorated tricycle: 1, Larry Cameron; 2, Richard Fudge.

Best decorated float: 1, Brown Implement Co.; 2, Duval Go Getters.

In the stunts class; balloon blowing: 1, Billy Cain; same for girls, Muriel Baxter, Boy's cracker eating: 1, Walter Schum; 2, John Justus. For the girls, same, Norma Jean Tucker.

Pop drinking, Charles Pettibone. Nail driving for girls: 1, Florence Swank; 2, Phyllis Litten. Sack race, Joe Pence. Barrel tilting: 1, Don Jenkins; 2, Jas. Miller.

Notes: The Boy Scouts were on the grounds with their first aid tent and equipment and rendered aid to one sick person, a Mrs. Besch. The attendance was equal to last year but the several concessions said they did not do so well. The rides did a good business. The refreshment stand, conducted by the Community Club was kept busy most of the time. It was an orderly, good natured crowd. The fireworks were up to standard and much enjoyed. The evening attendance was easily 10,000. The politicians were plenty busy.

INDIANA SOLON ASKED TO TAKE PLACE IN PARTY

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5—(UP)—Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, head of the Indiana Democratic party, undertook today to rescind his informal expulsion of Sen. Frederick Van Nuys and return him to the party fold. Because Van Nuys voted against President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill, Townsend had read him out of the party.

Last night the governor sent a telegram to Van Nuys at his Walloon Lakes, Mich., summer cottage, inviting him to become a candidate for renomination at the party's state convention next week, July 11 to 12. Inasmuch as Townsend had been considered the chief obstacle in the way of Van Nuys' renomination, observers believed the intra-party strife was ended. Van Nuys had planned to run as an Independent and had been assured the help of 11 Democratic senators who promised to stump for him in Indiana.

His supporters looked on the invitation as assuring him the nomination. Others in the Democratic ranks were waiting to hear his answer.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Survivors of Civil War Leave for Their Homes

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 5—(UP)—Armies of the North and South turned away from Gettysburg battlefield for the last time today with a note of sadness in their friendly farewells.

Many of the aged men of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans had clung tenaciously to their fading health that they might see this final reunion on the 75th anniversary of the biggest battle of the Civil War.

They have seen it now—an incomparable reunion in the history of the worlds wars. Their knotted fingers have clasped the hands of other old men they once fought on these same fields. They have heard President Roosevelt call on the nation to struggle eternally for peace through democracy and have seen the prowess of the most modern military machines.

But perhaps most impressive to the men in faded blue and gray was the unveiling of a new monument on Oak Hill, where, henceforth, a flame will burn eternally above the battlefield as a symbol of the nation's peace and unity.

May Be Last Meeting

There was much of that spirit of friendship and peace in the farewells that were said today by the men who knew they have small chance to see each other again.

"God bless you" and "Good bye" were spoken in the same breath time and again as the armies parted with sorrow as sincere, if not as tragic, as on that day three-quarters of a century ago when the army of northern Virginia, beaten back on Cemetery Ridge, turned toward Hagerstown leaving the Army of the Potomac so battered it could not pursue.

"This has been a glorious occasion," Gen. John P. Claypool, commander of the U. C. V., said as he and Mr. Overton Mennet, commander of the G. A. R., strode arm in arm to the headquarters of the Pennsylvania state commission and the army forces to say goodbyes.

"We of the Confederate army warmly thank every person who has had a part in providing this great reunion and congratulate them on the manner in which it has been handled."

"I want to echo General Claypool's sentiments," Mennet said. "We have been given every courtesy and consideration. There has never before been an occasion like this—and there may never be another."

The town of Gettysburg began a quick movement back to normal as the first of the veterans moved out, with the main force scheduled to start evacuation late this afternoon.

F. D. R. PREPARES TO START TOUR THROUGH NATION

Long Journey To Carry President Through Many States

SPEECHES SIGNIFICANT

Executive Expected To Talk For Liberals

WASHINGTON, July 5—(UP)—President Roosevelt is preparing today for a trans-continental invasion of primary election battlefields in the dual role of party leader and chief executive and as the champion of liberals generally against the conservatives of all parties.

His precise strategy is not known. But political observers considered it significant that among the states visited will be half a dozen in which the New Deal has vital interests. The journey, beginning July 7, will take Mr. Roosevelt into Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Georgia, and South Carolina—the latter two after a fishing vacation from which the President will return by way of the Panama Canal.

Formal appearances are not scheduled in all states through which the Roosevelt special will pass, but local statesmen have a way of persuading presidential trains to pause for rear platform appearances which were not planned when the trip originally was laid out.

Candidacies at Stake

Uppermost in Mr. Roosevelt's mind as he prepares to depart probably is the welfare of 100 per cent New Deal primary candidates seeking renomination and the opportunity his journey will offer to re-state to the voters some of the issues on which he and congress have differed. Insofar as he undertakes to particularize issues for this campaign, Mr. Roosevelt may again emphasize to those who hear him:

1. His determination to raise again the issue of reorganization of the executive departments of government which was voted down by the house in the session which ended last month.
2. New Deal plans to deal with monopoly, monopolistic practices and high prices.
3. The administration's desire for regional planning legislation for better use of land and water resources.
4. And possibly his determination to raise the corporation surplus and capital gains tax questions again in an effort to restore the drastic provisions which congress this year eliminated from the revenue act.

Mr. Roosevelt roughly sketched the outline of his personal plans for the 1938 campaign in a radio chat last month in which he said he could not intervene in primary or election contests in his capacity as President of the United States, but felt free and duty-bound to take a position in some instances in his role as leader of the Democratic party. In that chat the President called on voters of all parties to support liberal candidates against conservatives who were tagged with a new definition—copperheads.

His statement generally was interpreted to mean that the trip across the country would be heavily colored by politics and possibly become notable as a part of what some adverse critics of the administration term the "purge" of conservative Democrats. The "purge" so far has not amounted to much. Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins undertook to oppose Sen. Guy B. Gillette, D. Ia., for renomination. Gillette was among senators opposing Mr. Roosevelt's 1937 judiciary reorganization bill. But Iowa Democrats endorsed Gillette overwhelmingly.

SIX MORE JEWS SLAIN IN HOLY LAND RIOTING

JERUSALEM, July 5—(UP)—Six Jews were killed and four wounded today in a renewal of attacks and counter-attacks between Jews and Arabs which led some observers to fear a civil war.

Curfew regulations were imposed again and British troops and police throughout Palestine were on the alert for new terrorism after an outbreak of disorders in which nine Arabs were killed and 13 wounded.

The prospect of some form of civil war might ultimately compel Great Britain, which holds a mandate over the Holy Land, to take decisive action, it was said.

Today's attacks were regarded as reprisals for Jewish attacks on Arabs. Four were killed at Elver, a Jewish settlement near Tel Aviv. Four others were wounded at Roshpina, in North Palestine. A Jewish father and son were shot and killed in the old city of Jerusalem.

Drama, romance, thrills, and the gorgeous music of Victor Herbert's greatest operetta are blended in "Naughty Marietta," showing at the Cliftona theatre Wednesday and Thursday Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacular romance of Creole days in New Orleans, which brings to the screen Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous heroine of "The Merry Widow," and Nelson Eddy, eminent American operatic baritone.

Directed by W. S. Van Dyke, of "Thin Man" fame, it tells a graphic story of the settlement of New Orleans by the French in the days of Louis XV and of the love of a disguised French princess, seeking escape from a marriage of state, and an English officer.

Nation's Violent Deaths to Pass 500

CASUALTY LISTS INCLUDE 246 AS TRAFFIC VICTIMS

Efforts Of Organizations To Promote Safety Fruitless

MORE THAN 100 DROWN

17 Injured As Fireworks Stand Explodes

At least 497 persons died violently throughout the nation during the three-day Fourth of July week-end holiday.

It was one of the most costly Independence day celebrations since 1931. Since that year fatalities had exceeded 400 only once—in 1937—when Fourth of July deaths reached an all-time high of 560.

The steadily mounting list gave every indication it would equal, if not surpass, that of last year despite an intensive safety campaign which 28 organizations, with a membership of 46,000,000, had carried on in every state.

Automobiles as usual topped the casualty list with a total of 246. One hundred and twenty-two persons drowned. The remainder died in shootings, from falls, and freak accidents. There were only three fireworks fatalities, two in Virginia and one in Pennsylvania.

California and Illinois headed the state-by-state list of casualties with a total of 43 each. New York had 42, and Pennsylvania 37. South Carolina, Nebraska and Montana were the only states which reported no violent deaths during the long holiday.

Seventeen persons were injured, several seriously, last night at Portage Park, Chicago, when a huge mass of fireworks exploded prematurely. A crowd of about 20,000 persons was thrown into a

MART CONTINUES ITS SPEEDY PACE AFTER VACATION

NEW YORK, July 5—(UP)—Trading continued at a fast pace on the stock market today when the Exchange reopened after the Independence Day holiday week-end.

Initial blocks of 1,000 to 4,000 shares appeared and in the early dealings the tape was several minutes behind. It caught up before 10:30, however, and the market quieted on an outbreak of profit-taking which sent the whole list down. Montgomery Ward touched $46.62½ off $2 from yesterday's close and off $1.12½ from the opening price. Other sections had declined ranging to more than $1 a share.

The lows were touched about a half hour after the opening. Thereafter the market steadied and showed signs of resuming the rise. Support was noted for the motors, rails and metals. Automobile shares were particularly active at the start with 4,000-share blocks appearing in General Motors and Packard. General Motors began at $39, unchanged, sagged to $37.75 and then rallied slightly.

A decline in steels was arrested when U. S. Steel touched $59.25 off $1.62½. Anaconda opened unchanged at $34.87½ and then dipped to $34.25. Other coppers were narrow movers, aided by a rise to 10 cents a pound in the export copper price and another ¼ cent rise in scrap copper here.

SHANGHAI, July 5—(UP)—Gen. Alexander Von Falkenhausen, chief of the German military mission to China, left Hankow today with the last of his associates at the order of the German Nazi government. Dispatches from Hankow, reporting the departure, asserted that the German military chieftain said in his farewell message:

"I feel sure that China is gaining final victory and that Japan will fail both in war and peace." The statement caused a sensation here. It was known that Falkenhausen left only with great reluctance at the peremptory order of his government. Also it was reported from Hankow that after the first order for his departure, he had told foreign military attaches that he would not leave China unless he was threatened with prosecution in Germany.

NEW RECORD FOR WHEAT FORCES MARKETS LOWER

Nearly Five And One Half Million Bushels Offered At Kansas City

3,579 CARLOADS LISTED

July Futures Over Cent Lower Tuesday

The great influx of wheat on national markets was blamed Tuesday for a 3-cent drop in the cash offer to farmers on the Circleville market. The price offered Saturday was 64 cents; Tuesday it was 61. Elevator operators were kept going at top speed as farmers were rushing their threshing and combining. Combined wheat, operators said, is still showing a higher degree of moisture than threshed wheat.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 5—(UP)—Almost five and one-half million bushels of wheat, a new record for receipts at this world's greatest primary cash wheat market, reached here today and the price sagged under the heavy influx.

Record receipts were reported from other wheat marts in the Southwest, especially those at Wichita and Amarillo.

Frenzied scenes occurred on the Kansas City Board of Trade as buyers fought to place big orders for the cereal that has an exceptionally high protein value and is considered of choice quality.

Bond Issues On Unpledged Delinquent Taxes Win Approval

COLUMBUS, July 5—(UP)—Governor Davey today signed four bills, including the Lawrence bill allowing state subdivisions to issue bonds against 70 percent of unpledged delinquent taxes for poor relief purposes.

A proposed bond issue would require a 65 percent popular vote in places where bonds would be issued outside limitations. As the emergency clause was deleted, the act does not become effective for 90 days.

The governor also approved the Kalb bill for payment of balances of salaries due seven deceased legislators to their dependents.

The Richter bill extending to Jan. 1, 1941, the period in which works projects bonds already authorized may be issued and another Lawrence bill authorizing subdivisions to participate in public works programs.

WOMAN'S HEAD CUT, AGED MAN INJURED IN HEAVY TRAFFIC

Ashville Celebrator Loses Two Fingers On Left Hand as Homemade Cannon Explodes; Many Others Burned

Traffic accidents, one of which left a Circleville woman with a long cut on her forehead and another which sent an aged Kingston man to the hospital with injuries the extent of which has not been determined; fireworks mishaps, one of which mangled the left hand of an Ashville resident; drowning of a Harrison township girl, and numerous minor accidents marred the Independence Day celebration in Circleville and Pickaway county.

Mrs. Ruth Colville, 30, wife of Fred Colville, E. Franklin street, needed 15 stitches to close a cut in her forehead after the car driven by her husband and another driven by a Columbus resident crashed on Route 188 in Fairfield county near Cedar Hill. The accident happened before dark Monday evening.

The Colvilles were brought to Berger hospital for treatment after which they were taken home. Mrs. Colville is bruised, also, as is her husband. Mr. Colville is a deputy in the office of his father, Treasurer Robert G. Colville. Names of the persons in the Columbus car, none of whom was injured, were not obtained.

panic for several minutes as sky rockets, bombs, and pin wheels were discharged promiscuously. The accident boosted to 62 the number of persons injured by fireworks in the Chicago area.

BARNES LEASES RINGLING SHOW, BEGINS CIRCUIT

SARASOTA, Fla., July 5.—(UP)—The big show, under the same canvas but with a new name, went back on the road today to complete the circus swing halted by labor difficulties.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus, under the lease and the name of the Al G. Barnes show, headed North last night to appear in most of the towns the "greatest show on earth" had been scheduled to play.

The Barnes show is a subsidiary of the huge Ringling enterprises. Under the reorganized setup, in which most of the big show units will take part, managers of the circus apparently hoped to avoid labor trouble similar to that which bogged the circus down in a strike at Scranton, Pa. 10 days ago.

Gargantua, the gorilla, the Christiana act, the animals of Frank Buck's "Bring 'Em Back Alive" display and other Ringling attractions will join the Barnes show at Redfield, S. D.

The augmented show will follow "as far as possible" the Ringling circus' original itinerary, Ringling General Manager George W. Smith said.

the Southwestern markets today to more than 12,000,000 bushels. This tremendous flow resulted from the accumulation of Sunday and the Monday, July 4th, holiday.

This is sufficient to feed more than two million persons for one year.

The previous high mark for the two-day accumulation over the Fourth of July holiday was 3,366. That was set last year.

Grain men and buyers moved rapidly among the thousands of trays of samples taken from the 3,579 cars.

In the pit July futures were off 1 1/2 cents, the result, operators said, of the depressing market influences in foreign wheat centers. Much grain sold at 67 to 70 cents a bushel.

TROTH OF YEAR SEEN AS IDEAL

PASADENA, Cal., July 5.—(UP)—A survey of 800 married couples would indicate that love at first sight is a serious handicap to a happy marriage, according to Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the Los Angeles County Institute of Family Relations.

The next most serious handicap, it would seem from his report, is where the engagement period runs too long.

Of the 800 marriages included in the survey, 374 admittedly were unhappy couples and 436 were enjoying a measure of happiness.

The deductions made from the survey would indicate that on the average the happiest couples are those that wait two years before engagement and then another year before marrying.

Unhappy Average Struck
On the other hand, the unhappy couples investigated showed that they had known each other for only about 20 months before engagement and then seven and a half months before marriage.

The more happier couples were those who were acquainted for 28 months before becoming engaged and then who waited for a year or more before marrying.

Nearly 20 per cent were acquainted for more than five years before they became engaged.

Marriages on the spur of the moment without any engagement occurred eight times as often among the unhappy couples as among those that turned out better.

Snap Decisions Rued
These were not marriages at sight, for the couples had known each other for a year or two, but had merely made up their minds suddenly to get married. There were 140 unhappy couples in this no-engagement group.

Five of the unhappy couples reported love at first sight and, although they waited from one to 11 months before marriage, the "love at first sight and lived happily ever afterward" at fiction fame, failed to work.

The longest betrothal among the unhappy couples was four years and among the happy couples 12 years.

PYTHON SLASHES FRANK BUCK, FAMOUS HUNTER

AMITYVILLE N. Y., July 5.—(UP)—Frank "Bring 'Em Back Alive" Buck was back on the job today, recovered from the bite of a 24-foot python which slashed his finger last night when he tried to force food into its mouth. He was taken to Reed General hospital for observation.

The python is non-poisonous but has long, sharp teeth. Dr. Theodore Reed insisted that Buck take hospital treatment to guard against infection. The snake was brought from Singapore in 1935 to Buck's zoo at Massapequa, near here. It had refused to eat and was getting thin. Buck decided on forcible feeding.

Held in "Lottery" Murder

ONE OF the weirdest murder mysteries on record was revealed at Waycross, Ga., with the arrest of Harvey Nelson and Vera Mae Fowler, pictured above. The man's 10-year-old son had been shot dead. Nelson is said to have confessed that the Fowler woman and Mary Kent, employees at his roadside, drew lots to see which one would kill the lad for the $900 insurance. Nelson said the Fowler woman fired the shot.

DREDGE TO AID DEEP SEA WORK

MONTEREY, Cal., July 5.—(UP)—Working of undersea gold and oil deposits at a depth of 1,000 feet has been made possible by the building here of a 10-ton deep sea dredge which has been put to a successful test.

The dredge, which was built at a cost of $50,000, is the result of 20 years of experimentation by John C. Williams, San Francisco engineer, and operates at a depth 10 times greater than heretofore possible.

So important is the perfection of the dredge considered, that its first demonstration was attended by officials of the navy, leading university experts, and engineers of some of the leading construction concerns of the United States.

Navy Sends Engineer
Among these were Commander R. R. Lukens, of the Coast and Geodetic Survey; Lieut. John J. Scheibler, one of the construction corps of the Mare Island navy yard; Prof. E. P. Leslie of the engineering department of Stanford University, and R. A. Slater, assistant chief engineer of the Westinghouse Electric Company.

It is believed the dredge will open up possibilities of entirely new and undeveloped undersea wealth. It is also expected to play an important role in its application to industry and undersea projects of all kinds.

On the occasion of its first test, it brought up for the first time in the world, appreciable quantities of sea bottom taken at a depth of 700 feet.

Numerous engineering difficulties had to be overcome to make the dredge workable.

Water Used For Energy
The underlying principle in its operation is the conversion of the hydro-static head of water into kinetic energy which takes the dead weight of the water and changes it into live power.

When the dredge is lowered, the jaws are held open by a seal over the valves which, when the dredge reaches the ocean bottom, automatically opens, allowing an inrush of water. This water forces up the pistons and closes the jaws on the dredge full of sea bottom that has been taken in.

The natural weight of the water—terrible at this depth—also is utilized to force a heavy grease around the pistons, and the grease, being thicker and less fluid than water, clamps around them and keeps the water out. This obviates the necessity of ordinary packing around the piston.

Experts, who watched the first demonstration of the dredge, declared that this new packing principle also will have an effect upon almost every piston and cylinder mechanism that has to work in any kind of fluid.

'GREAT GILBERT' FACES CHARGES AS CLIENT DIES

GLENDAL, Calif., July 5.—(UP)—Police held "The Great Gilbert" on open charges today after his latest hypnotic birth client, a young housewife who feared the normal delivery of her child, died during a practice trance.

Glendale authorities said they intended to keep Robert A. Gilbert behind bars until they learned the exact cause of 23-year-old Mrs. Marie Colombos' death.

"The Great Gilbert," as he was known during his 20 years in Orpheum circuit vaudeville as a hypnotist, insisted that his occult ministrations could not have killed Mrs. Colombos. He said he believed that she had died of a heart attack, suffered when she attempted to move a couch.

The Chinese government consented to the departure of the Germans only after exhausting every means to persuade them to stay. The Nazi government was so angry at the attitude of the government that it ordered its ambassador, Dr. Oskar Trautmann, to return to Berlin, and dispatches from there quoted diplomatic quarters as expressing belief that he would not return, or be replaced, for a considerable time.

Falkenhausen's departure, and that of his associates, was admittedly a severe blow to China. Since 1934 Falkenhausen had been advising first on the reorganization of the Chinese army into an efficient, well armed body, and secondly on the strategy and tactics of the war.

Incidentally, it was against the urgent advice of Falkenhausen that the Chinese defended Shanghai.

Blackmail, Threat to Kill Londoner Heard in Barbara's Court Contest

250,000 on the Count but later decided it might be better to make him an outright gift of $250,000.

After all the charges, outlined first by Sir Patrick Hastings, the Countess's chief counsel, in an opening statement, and then by William M. Mitchell, her regular lawyer, in testimony, Mitchell admitted under cross-examination that the Count said:

"Despite everything I still love her and always will."

"But at the same time he said words to another effect, too," added Mitchell.

"Did he say he had never looked at another woman and had always been sweet on his own wife?" asked Norman Birkett, for the Count.

"Yes," admitted Mitchell.

"You agree that there were absolutely no grounds whatever for divorce?"

"Absolutely none," said Mitchell. Hastings, for the Countess, read the letter, written June 17, in which the Countess broke with her husband. It was:

"Dear Court:
"Your attitude during the last year, and especially during the last few weeks, has made it impossible for me to go on living with you. I want to say I hope you are well and that I want you to have a happy life, just as I want one for myself. Together this is impossible, as I realize now. I do not want you to have hard feelings about me and I have not got any about you. One thing I want to ask you, Please do not ask or try to see me again. I shall be reasonable and I know you will also. With all my best wishes,
"Always affectionately,
"Barbara."

Written by Lawyer
"Did you phrase that letter?" Birkett asked Mitchell.

"Yes, but she altered it," Later Birkett asked:
"I am sorry to have to put this,

but did the Count say, 'I have ample evidence that Winfield house is not a suitable place for my boy to be brought up?'"

"Yes," Mitchell replied, adding that the Count had told him he had information from a former chauffeur "regarding certain happenings at Winfield house."

"Did that refer to the gentleman spoken of by my learned friend?" asked Birkett.

"Yes," Mitchell replied.

Countess Barbara, clad in a black suit and wearing dark gray furs, sat just behind the dock in which Haugwitz-Reventlow, handsome Danish nobleman who is her second husband, sat—(by special permission—defendants ordinarily stand) and scribbled notes on the testimony against him.

It was perhaps the first time that $400,000 was represented in the musty little court room where drunk-and-disorderly cases provide the greater part of the normal day's budget.

Haugwitz-Reventlow was charged with "using threats towards the complainant whereby she apprehends that she goes in danger of her life or of some bodily harm that he will do or cause to be done to her."

Hastings, former attorney general and regarded as perhaps the country's leading trial lawyer, outlined to Sir Rollo F. Graham-Campbell, chief magistrate, the case in which the Countess charged that she had been threatened by her count.

As usual, Hastings, his eyes blazing under his shaggy brows, was merciless.

He opened with the statement by June 2 last it was found that family life was becoming practically impossible between the Count and Countess, and that a separation was discussed.

"The defendant is a very peculiar man according to the evidence you will hear," he continued.

SEWAGE PLANT OPENING TO AID RIVER'S PURITY

Engineers Estimate Scioto
To Show Improvement In Short Time

LONG TROUBLE ENDED
Columbus Treatment Station
On Full Power

Steady improvement in the condition of the Scioto river through Pickaway county should be noticed within the next few years through the opening of the new $3,700,000 sewage treatment works at Columbus.

Pollution of the last 18 years, caused by an inadequate plant, will be ended. Full power was turned into the treatment plant last week. The plant will place a clear liquid, 95 percent pure, into the river instead of raw or partially treated sewage. It is estimated that a year will be required to show a marked improvement in the stream's condition.

Ordered Issued in 1927
The state board of health issued the order to the city to halt pollution of the stream on Sept. 9, 1927. From that time until 1934 there were controversies on the location of the plant, the type and finances.

The public works section of the national industry recovery act in 1933 made possible the financing for the plant. Voters approved issuing bonds for the city's share. First bids were opened in 1934. The last major contract was granted two years later.

A $250,000 gas engine generator unit is to be completed by Fall to convert available sewer gas into electrical power, saving the city between $45,000 and $50,000 a year in operating costs. Funds for the plant operation will be obtained under a sewer rental tax based on the amount of water placed in sanitary sewers. Forty-five men are employed at the plant.

With Circleville starting construction of a disposal plant to treat the city's wastes all indications point to a much more wholesome stream through central Ohio before many more years.

Nearly 200 assembled here for the occasion including 112 visitors from more than 20 other chapters.

A lovely six o'clock dinner was served in the church dining room by the M. E. Ladies' Aid Society. The dining room was decorated with the colors of Eastern Star and Summer flowers. The chapter room of the Masonic Temple was also decorated with the official colors of the order and flowers.

Ski School or Divorce in Reno?

Paulette Goddard

Paulette and Charlie in other days

COULD Paulette Goddard's mission to Reno, Nev., the divorce capital, be a divorce from Charlie Chaplin? Or is it to establish a ski school as she says it is? Friends and movie fans wonder as the actress takes the news spotlight with her Reno engagement. There still has been no confirmation that Chaplin and Miss Goddard are married. Her name has been linked with the comedian since 1934, when he brought her before the film public as his leading woman. Chaplin took Miss Goddard and her mother, as chaperone, on a world tour aboard his million-dollar yacht four years ago. It was at that time she and Chaplin were rumored married at sea.

Circleville, Past Grand Matron and Grand Trustee.

C. C. Chappelle, of Circleville, Past Grand Patron.

Mrs. May Hill, of Williamsport, Grand Representative to Indiana. Mrs. Dave M. Campbell, of Wilmington, Deputy Grand Matron of the 21st District.

Mrs. William K. Link, of Sandusky, Deputy Grand Matron of the Fifth District.

Mrs. Dick then introduced the visiting worthy matrons and worthy patrons and gave a personal greeting to past matrons and patrons of Purity Chapter.

A beautiful vocal solo number was presented by Mrs. Lillian Harbaugh Hosler of Ashville. Mrs. Ervin Leist of Circleville accompanied her.

The presentation of initiatory degrees followed. Mrs. Stella Roush of Chillicothe, Past Deputy Grand Matron and Mrs. Marjorie Jacoby of Wilmington acted as candidates pro tem.

In the report of the inspecting officer given by Miss Peck, Purity Chapter was awarded the highest grade of "Excellent." At the close of her address Miss Peck rendered a beautiful vocal solo, "My Task." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Mary Lou Murrell, of Wilmington, who also acted as program organizer throughout the inspecting ceremonies.

On behalf of Purity Chapter, Mrs. Dick presented lovely gift tokens to Miss Peck and Mrs. Roth, who responded graciously.

WELL, I'LL TELL YOU.
BY BOB BURNS

Now that we're gettin' well along in the Summer, everybody's tryin' to pick the best place to spend his vacation. I want to tell you—it don't make a bit of difference what kind of a place you pick, your enjoyment is gonna depend entirely on what experience you have after you get there.

The other day I took a friend of mine out to a golf course that has a little creek winding back and forth across the fairway. On the first tee, he knocked the ball safely on the other side and he turned to me with a light in his eyes, and says "It certainly is wonderful to play on a course where there's a nice, cool stream winding across it like this."

On the very next hole, he sliced his ball and it went in the creek. He glared at me and says "How in the world do you expect a man to play golf on a course that's got a sewer in the middle of it!"

Hughes Plans to Start Ocean Hop in Two Weeks

NEW YORK, July 5.—(UP)—Howard Hughes, 32-year-old millionaire sportsman and airplane speed champion, said today that he would take off within two weeks on a flight to Paris and possibly around the world in his twin-motored monoplane which he landed at Floyd Bennett field at 6:38 last night after a seven-hour flight from Wichita, Kan.

Four assistants will accompany him across the ocean to publicize New York's World Fair in 1939. They plan a comparatively slow and safe flight, averaging about 155 miles an hour by throttling down the plane motors to 450 of their 1,100 horsepower each to conserve gasoline.

At such a speed, they could reach Paris in 24 hours.

On the flight from Kansas, speed was reduced to 135 miles an hour to test gasoline consumption, which was found to be 70 gallons an hour. The plane's fuel capacity is 1,750 gallons.

Five assistants accompanied Hughes to New York in the plane: Lieut. Hiram Thurlow, navigator and co-pilot; Harry Connor, co-pilot; Richard Stoddard, radio operator; Glenn Odekirk and Dale Power, engineers. Thurlow, Connor and Stoddard, and one other not yet chosen, will make the ocean flight.

Thousands at Field
Several thousand were waiting at the field to greet the young Texan, who inherited an oil and tool manufacturing fortune from his father and added to it with successful motion picture productions. He waved wearily to them as he alighted, dressed in his usual careless manner, tieless, a frayed shirt open at the collar, a disheveled suit and a battered felt hat.

His plane, a special Lockheed 14, has a cruising range of 4,700 miles and special features such as three radio transmitters and a Sperry gyropilot which controls the plane automatically, and which he expects to use extensively on the ocean flight.

He tested the radio receiver on the flight from Burbank, Calif., where he left Sunday, and Wichita, and said he had picked up a station in Honolulu, 5,000 miles away.

His plans beyond flying to Paris, he said, were indefinite. He has obtained permission to visit several European countries and has considered continuing around the world, via Moscow and Fairbanks, Alaska.

He planned to spend the next few days studying weather maps

GUY LOMBARDO GUEST

Guy Lombardo will be the guest conductor on the Benny Goodman program Tuesday evening, July 19, during the "King of Swings" brief vacation in England and France. Goodman will sail for Europe immediately following his broadcast of July 12th, to be away only three weeks, returning in time to conduct the "Swing School" broadcast on August 2.

Goodman and his band will broadcast their regular Tuesday night stint from the Terrace Room of the Hotel Statler in Buffalo, N. Y. on July 5, at 8:30 p. m. over the Columbia network.

FONDA AND CARLISLE

Bing Crosby and Bob Burns will get out the red carpet for such visiting firemen as Henry Fonda, Mary Carlisle and Dailies Frantz, the pianist, on Thursday, July 7. Fonda and Miss Carlisle are the representatives of the movies and Dailies Frantz of the concert contingent. With the Paul Taylor chorus and John Scott Trotter's orchestra the full hour show will be broadcast over the NBC red network at 9 p. m.

Henry Fonda is fresh from a screen triumph in "Blockade," for a Crosby interview and any other piece of drollery which happens to be lying around waiting for a broadcast.

Mary Carlisle is equally a singer and an actress. In the Hall she bears the V.C.P. (Veteran Crosby Pictures) label, a designation acquired in Bing's recent "Dr. Rhythm."

Dailies Frantz, (it is Mr. Frantz), the distinguished concert pianist, has played concerts in most of the leading cities of the world, both solo concerts and as soloist with the important symphony orchestras.

SEASHORE CAMP CONSIDERED FOR BRITISH FELONS

LONDON (UP)—British convicts soon may go to the seaside to work and play.

Under the home secretary's latest scheme to add to the "attractions" of prison life, a big camp will be built on the South Coast, where good conduct men "on their honor" will be able to relax—and work—away from the atmosphere of prison walls.

Convicts chosen to have a holiday at the state's expense will have no more supervision than that ordinarily given to navvies engaged on road or other reconstruction work.

After a working day of eight hours "guests of the camp will spend their evenings in rooms devoted to entertainment, writing and reading. They will not be permitted to leave the camp at night.

Now YOU CAN BUY A Firestone Gum-Dipped Tire 760
FOR AS LITTLE AS $1

FIRESTONE cuts the cost of Tire Safety just at the time when you need a new set of tires. At this time of the year you should replace tires that are worn and smooth for greatest safety during the summer driving season. Tires may look alike on the outside—but inside they are different. The name FIRESTONE on a tire is your assurance of extra safety and long mileage because only Firestone Tires are built with these patented and exclusive construction features.

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process by which every fiber of every cord in every ply is saturated with liquid rubber, counteracts tire-destroying internal friction and heat which ordinarily cause blowouts. Nine extra pounds of rubber are added to every 100 pounds of cord.

Two Extra Layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread, another patented Firestone construction feature, protect against punctures.

Scientifically - Designed Non-Skid Tread made of tough slow-wearing rubber, assures safer stops and longer non-skid mileage.

Now that Firestone gives you all of these safety and economy features at these low prices, you cannot afford to take chances with unsafe tires this summer. Come in today and join the Firestone Save-A-Life Campaign by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Convoy Tires — the safest tires that money can buy at these low prices.

BABIES GAINING

ONE pretty good way of measuring the progress of civilization is by the decline in the babies' death rate. By this standard we're doing pretty well.

In New York City, which is not exactly typical but will serve as an illustration, thirty years ago one baby out of every eight died before it was one year old. Twenty years ago the rate had declined to one in ten. Six years ago it was only one in 18. Now it is a little less than that, in spite of depression and the unhealthful consequences.

In short, babies in America today have more than twice the chance of survival that they had a generation ago, and one-third better chance than they had at the beginning of the depression.

This progress comes through better medical knowledge, better parental care and better food, with special emphasis on milk.

GENTLE BREEZES

OUT of the many winds of business comment, here is a statement that seems unusually apt and reassuring. It is from a business expert of Western Reserve University, in the form of a "Good News Letter."

There is nothing to be alarmed about in the recent big rise in stocks, he says. There have been times when such a spectacular rise was doubtful because it was accompanied by bad news. This time there is no such adulteration; the news is mostly good. The next six months look better than the last six, and the stock market confirms it.

He speaks of the evidence of abundant cash in people's pockets, as shown by heavy attendance at sporting events; steel production well above 1932 levels, with scrap prices rising; a doubling of the life insurance purchased in June over that of last year; sales of cotton goods up sharply and ahead of production; consumption now surpassing production in nearly every line.

"Unlike 1930-31," he adds, "we shut down very quickly this time thereby bringing closer the time when production must increase again. The inevitable revival will not manifest itself in all industries at the same time. Construction often sweeps the country by storm, but expansion floats on gentle breezes. That is the nature of the business cycle."

A nation can't make itself rich by building up stocks, but it makes people feel richer.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

Every time the moment approaches for congress to adjourn the cry is raised that the lawmakers' duty is to quit just as soon as possible in order to get the agony over and give business a chance to recuperate.

The senators and representatives join in this clamor.

One might think that they would hate to admit that they would continue in a state of pessimistic uncertainty as long as they linger in Washington.

It is understandable that the end of a legislative session comes as a relief to the president. Congress is a worry to him, jabbering in Capitol Hill, finding fault with his policies and quibbling as to the merits of his recommendations.

But the congressmen themselves? Why shouldn't they like it?

FEAR GRIPS THEM

Well, for one thing, in a campaign year, like this one, all the representatives and the one-third of the senators whose seats are at stake, want to get home in a hurry, to attend to being renominated and re-elected.

Moreover, a goodly number of them are glad to escape from the capital to avoid having to vote on questions which they are none too sure how their constituents want them to vote. If such questions can be shelved until next session at least it's a respite.

A politician's life, like a policeman's, after all is not an easy one.

SOME LIVE IN CAPITAL

By the way—Some senators and representatives become so addicted to Washington and its suburbs that I wouldn't think their home folk any longer would consider them local residents.

I know several western senators who have permanent homes in the capital or estates in nearby Virginia or Maryland. Hereabouts, in effect, is where they live. Yet they speak of ballistics 1,000 miles or so removed from here. How can such a statesman miss losing touch with his original neighborhood's interests?

Quite awhile ago, returning from a western trip, I wanted to stop off for an interview with a representative from western Pennsylvania. Congress was in recess, and I took it for granted that I should find him in the town he nominally hailed from.

Getting off there, I had the darnedest time locating his residence. Finally I inquired at the police station. The police were puzzled, too, but ultimately they directed me to his address.

I applied there. "Why, yes," said the lady who answered the doorbell, "he keeps a room here, but he lives in Washington."

How he hung, politically, onto that congressional district, is a mystery to me, but he did it—and was a pretty prominent representative.

He never was beaten, either; he died in office—died in Washington.

WHERE DO YOURS LIVE?

Home folk, consider: Do your senators and representatives live where you live? Or do they live in Washington or Virginia or Maryland?

Parentetically: Under the constitution, a representative does not have to live in the district he represents. His district can hire him from elsewhere. It never is done in practice, but a non-resident theoretically is eligible. A senator, however, must be from the state he speaks for. He is, constitutionally, a state's ambassador. He can't be, for example, a Wisconsinian, but for all practical purposes, a Virginian.

CONTRADICTION!

But as to congress' adjournment?

Congress may have been called into extra session—a blessing. But when it adjourns—that also is a blessing.

Contradictory!

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

ECONOMISTS SEE RECOVERY

WASHINGTON — Following a month's exhaustive study of underlying factors, inner council economists have reached the following confidential conclusions regarding the business outlook:

1. That the downward spiral is now definitely in reverse and that recovery will come much sooner than they had previously predicted — probably by Fall.
2. That the pace of recovery, once it does come, will be rapid rather than slow.
3. That the pattern of the current climb out of the recession is following the lines of similar situations in 1921, 1924 and 1932, when the production of non-durable (consumer) goods started upward while the production of durable goods still lagged.

THE REASONS WHY

The New Dealers base their cheery report on these determining factors:

1. With the exception of the railroads, the financial structure of business generally is sound. Banks and insurance companies are untouched and farmers have suffered no serious impairment, despite the decline in agricultural income.
2. Consumer spending has been relatively well maintained: first, because individual resources have not been exhausted on a wide scale as they were in 1931-33; and second, because consumers have not developed a hoarding complex, due chiefly to the existence of the Federal Deposit Insurance system, eliminating fear of bank failures.
3. The localization of major declines in manufacturing, mining and related industries—which account for more than half of the rise in unemployment since last September—prevented the spread of a panic psychology throughout the country.
4. Liquidation of the large, high-priced inventories of consumer goods that were on hand when the recession developed last Fall. Shelves generally have been well cleaned out and with demand increasing, buyers are placing new orders with manufacturers.
5. High prices, which played, a leading role in precipitating the recession, have been materially reduced, thereby stimulating both retail and wholesale buying.

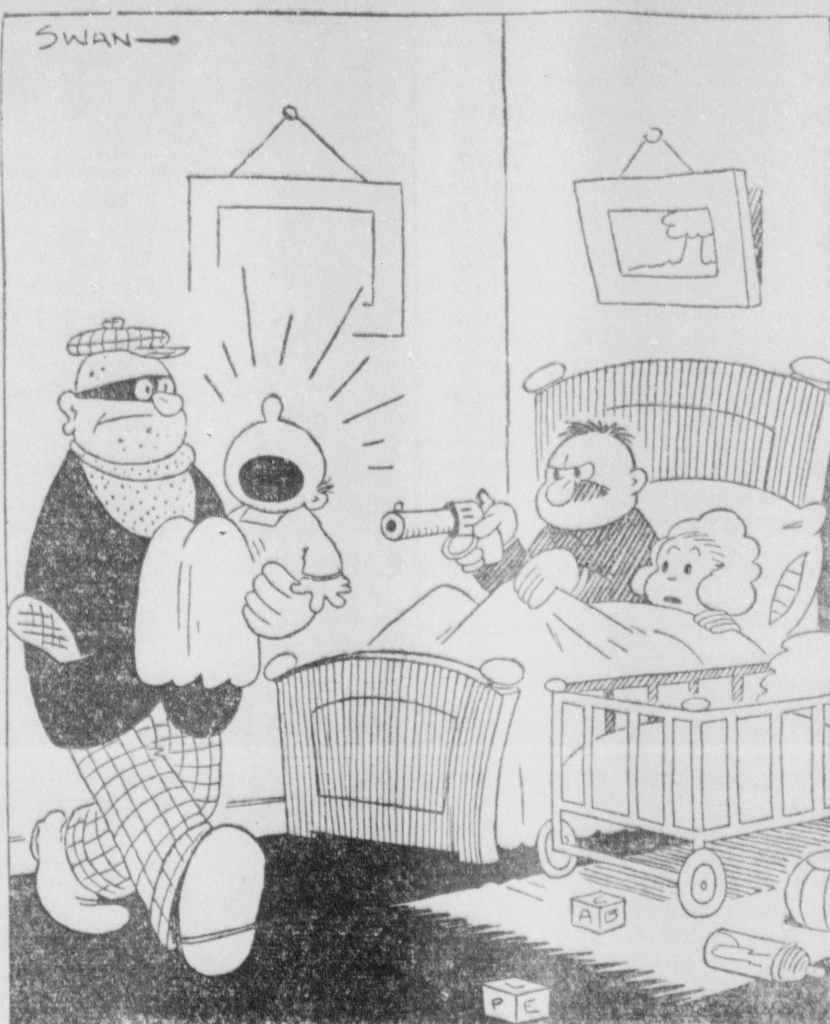

The economists placed great stress on the last item. As long as prices continued high, they declared, buying continued to decline, but as soon as prices began to tumble, buying began to revive. This explains why the price-cut announcement of U. S. Steel was received with jubilation by the White House group.

STEEL PRICES

At the root of the far-reaching price cut announced by U. S. Steel was a case of sheer necessity.

Another precaution for Aryan purity—the Nazis are barring Jews from race tracks, book-makers and betting machines.

DIET AND HEALTH

How Various Arthritis Forms Are Treated

By Logan Clendening, M. D.
SUMMER is a good time for arthritis generally. Their pains are lessened, and their joints loosen up so they can get around. This is an indication that the best treatment is heat. And even in the summer the use of heat will help the natural curative powers of the weather and the sun.

There are so many different kinds of arthritis that no general statement about treatment can be made which will fit all cases. Then any particular kind of arthritis may occur in different degrees of severity. A man wrote me recently asking for a diet of arthritis, adding that he was unable to get about except on crutches. Well, diet is not calculated to do any good when such advanced structural changes have taken place. Manipulation and orthopedic surgery should be used in such cases.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There are two general kinds of chronic arthritis — one in which there is an overgrowth of bone around the joints and the other in which there is atrophy of the joint structures. Most cases that one sees belong to the former type; it is the common rheumatism of middle age and old age. Usually it affects the bones of the hands or feet with possibly one or two other joints, and usually it is not severe or crippling. When it affects the spine, however, it is very disabling.

Affects Young People
The atrophic type affects young people and is much more severe. It may finally involve every joint in the body.

In treatment of the bony overgrowth type, the main reliance is on mechanical manipulations or heat treatments, or both.

Diet has very little influence on this form of arthritis. My readers are forever writing in to ask me to send them the diet I recommended for arthritis. Now I have never recommended a diet of any kind for arthritis, for I have never seen any diet influence a case either for good or bad. When the patient is overweight, reduction diets should be planned, and when the patient is undernourished a rich nutritious diet should be given, but that is not a specific diet. Some have recommended a high vitamin, low fat diet, the vitamins, especially Vitamin B, being added in concentrated form, but the results of this diet do not seem to me to be any different from any other.

The use of the products of the ductless glands, especially thyroid extract, is highly recommended by some. Inasmuch as thyroid increases the temperature of the body this can possibly be said to be a form of heat treatment.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

H. P.: "Please tell me what is a tie (in plain English, shaking of the head)?"

Answer: Ties are of various kinds. They are spasmodic muscular movements—sometimes the face, sometimes the shoulders, sometimes the whole body. They appear to result in a habit which gets ingrained in the nervous system and is difficult to cure. It requires a tremendous amount of will power and practice to cure these movements.

G. M.: "Is there any way of straightening hammertoes, or crooked toes, either permanently or temporarily?"

Answer: Yes. All orthopedic surgeons are proficient in such treatment.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. TWO WORLDS

BY MAUD MCCURDY WELCH

Written for CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Noel Shayne, wealthy society girl, is in love with Dr. Julian Paige, a serious-minded young physician who declares he will not permit himself to fall in love with Noel because of the contrasting worlds in which they live. Determined to show Julian she has stamina, Noel gives up a long trip with her aunt, turns over her income of $100,000 to her uncle who is in financial difficulties, buys her first outfit of inexpensive clothes and tells Julian she is going to find a job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 3

AFTER SHE had paid off the servants at Stone Gate and attended to other bills, Noel had a little over a hundred dollars in her bliffo. She smiled to think that it was almost the same amount her grandfather had had when he sailed to the United States to lay the foundation for the Shayne fortune.

Frankie, Noel's aunt, was a pretty frivolous woman of middle-age, with touched-up hair and a face from which all the lines had been carefully erased by skillful beauty technicians.

Just now she was in the hands of her maid, lying back among the cushions of the chaise longue, having a pedicure. Why a pedicure? Noel did not know. Perhaps merely to kill time. But Noel loved her aunt devotedly in spite of all her little affectations.

"Come in, darling," Frankie greeted her in her chirrupy voice. Then when she saw Noel wearing the cheap tweed suit and linen blouse, she gave a little scream. "What is it, darling? A masquerade?"

Noel lighted a cigaret and glanced at the maid. Frankie dismissed her at once and turned again to Noel, her eyes averted with curiosity. "Is it some kind of a game?"

Noel hesitated. She hadn't quite decided how to break the news to Frankie, who was quite capable of protesting strenuously, and ever she disapproved of anything Noel proposed to do. But in spite of her little fluttery ways, Frankie did have an understanding nature.

So Noel decided to take the plunge. "If you had fallen in love with a man," she began, "and he practically told you that you were a parasite and a useless lumberer of the earth, what would you do?"

Frankie sat up on the chaise longue, her faded blue eyes wide. "Darling, did someone actually dare—?" She stopped and drew her lips together in a straight line. "Well, I wouldn't let him get away with it. I'd make him take it back word for word."

"That's exactly what I'm going to do," Noel told her. "I'm going to stay right here, get a job and show him that I can make my own living as well as he can make his."

Frankie clasped her fragile hands. "But, darling, it all sounds very romantic and thrilling, and I always did think you had some of your grandfather's stubbornness and spirit. But what on earth would I do at Alx-le-Bains without you? It would just be too tiresome for words," she finished plaintively.

"You can play five-suit bridge," Noel reminded.

Frankie brightened at that. She was passionately devoted to bridge. "Is that too, too devastating young doctor, Julian Paige?" Frankie asked after a minute's thought.

Noel crushed her cigaret and sank into a chair. "Yes, it is. I suppose I might as well admit the truth."

"He's precious," Frankie said with a smile. "And he's so different from all the other kind of men you have known. He has strength and—there's something really fine about him, I think," she stopped for a moment then added, "but, really, darling, he isn't any right in the world to say things like that to you. It sounds a bit priggish, I'm afraid."

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, July 5

THIS SHOULD be a day of much enterprise and initiative, but there may be some excitement and turbulent, if not violence, judging by the lunar and mutual configurations. Upheaval, commotion and probably litigation may make matters very disagreeable and unprofitable, unless good judgment, sound sense and calm demeanor are permitted to override rash emotionalism. Change may be of benefit, especially if engineered with prudence and discretion.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of disaster and disturbance if they permit tempestuous and reckless behavior to complicate affairs. Litigation, violence, enmity and distress are likely to follow unruly and vindictive conduct, whereas some success and profitable adventure may climax calm and restrained activities. Tact and discretion may turn matters to good account.

A child born on this day may be constructive, enterprising and industrious, although it may be carried into many disputes, dangers and regrets by indulging its fiery and reckless impulses. However, it may have kind and helpful friends.

ANZIE WAR HISTORY WRITTEN
SYDNEY—(UP)—The last of the 12 volumes of the Australian history of the World War, edited by Dr. C. E. W. Bean, official war correspondent with the Australian forces from 1914 to 1918, will be published this year. The cost of producing the history so far has been $223,460.

She brushed back her curls and smiled.

Noel shook her head. "No, he's not like that at all. He's just—"

Frankie interrupted her. "She couldn't tell anybody, not even Frankie, just how she felt about Julian Paige."

"Anyway," Frankie went on more complacently, "you'll soon show him he was all wrong, won't you?" Then she added, a note of anxiety coming back to her voice, "You won't be getting into any trouble, if I leave you here, will you, Noel?"

"Of course I won't," Noel answered blithely. "I'm going to have the time of my life."

"At least you won't be bored," Frankie said, her voice again plaintive. "If you only knew how dreadfully hard it is to keep from being bored these days, even at Monte Carlo."

"You'll meet your friends. You'll have a nice time," Noel tried to reassure her.

At last Frankie's qualms were set at rest. A few hours later, she and Noel bade each other an affectionate goodbye. It was, of course, only a lark, Frankie told herself confidently. Noel had been restless of late. Perhaps it was time she felt seriously in love. And it wouldn't take long for her to win the man she wanted, for it was Frankie's opinion that there wasn't alive in the world a man who could remain indifferent to Noel's rose and golden beauty and her gay spirits. So she departed happily for California.

It was 10 o'clock that night before Noel was ready to start on the first lap of her adventure. Stone Gate was closed, the servants gone.

Noel took a taxi to the dingy rooming house on Court street where she had engaged a room under the name of Noel Doran. She gave the driver a dollar tip, then suddenly realized that since she was not a working girl, and entirely dependent on what she earned for her living, she had no right to be using taxicabs, much less tipping the driver dollar bills!

But she wouldn't forget again. She was beginning to learn already.

Once in her room, she hardly looked around the dingy quarters, but tumbled into the bed, rather lumpy bed, and soon fell asleep.

The next morning when she awakened and her eyes fell upon the discolored wall paper, the rusty grate, and the cheap wooden furniture, she opened her eyes wide, startled.

Then remembrance came back. She brushed back her curls and, but tumbled into the bed, rather lumpy bed, and soon fell asleep.

When she picked up her bag, which she had left on the bench beside her, she found the clasp unfastened. Panic stricken she looked inside. The bliffo was gone. Someone had cleverly removed it from her bag while she had been sitting there half covered up with newspapers. She had a little less than $4 in her change purse.

THE YOUNGER generation needn't wait until it becomes taxpayers to feel the pinch of these troublesome times. The biggest circus in the business has cancelled its tour.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

A PERENNIAL border which gives continuous bloom is the ambition of every true gardener. However, this is almost impossible without the addition of annuals to fill the vacant spaces left by spring blooming bulbs and by perennials which die down after flowering.

Fruit Soup Is Unusual

EVERY RECIPE given here today is a request number.

Swedish fruit soup, for which we have had so many requests, calls for three-quarters of a cup of rice, one-half cup currants, one-half pound seedless raisins, one pound brown sugar, three quarts boiling water, one-half pound prunes, one lemon and three apples, cut in pieces, to yield 11 cups of soup. Cook all ingredients but the apples for one hour in an enameled kettle. Add the apples when nearly done. Add a cinnamon stick. Serve hot or cold.

Shrimp and celery chowder is another nice soup. Two tablespoons minute-cooking tapioca, three-quarters teaspoon salt, three cups scalded milk, two bouillon cubes (chicken flavor), one cup celery (diced), one cup water, three-quarters cup cooked diced potato one cup diced shrimp, three tablespoons butter, dash of cayenne and four pilot biscuits or hard crackers will serve four. Add tapioca and salt to milk, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Cook bouillon cubes, celery and water together three minutes. Add to tapioca mixture. Add shrimp, potato, butter and cayenne. Reheat. Before serving place pilot biscuits on top.

Ginger ale salad is a delectable dessert salad, especially nice for this time of year when one has to cater to jaded appetites. One package lemon or lime-flavored gelatin, one-half cup boiling water, one and one-half cups ginger ale, four tablespoons finely-chopped nut meats, four tablespoons finely-chopped celery, one tablespoon ginger (finely chopped, if desired), one cup assorted, diced fruits (apple, orange, cherries, grapes or canned pineapple), will make six portions. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water if necessary. Chill. Add ginger ale. When slightly thickened, fold in nuts, celery, ginger and fruits. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unfold on crisp lettuce and serve with mayonnaise.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

LEADING YOUR partner's suit, when the declarer's no trump bids show emphatically that he doesn't fear it, is sometimes tantamount to abandoning all hope. If you have a pretty good suit of your own, the declarer may not have it very well stopped. If in addition you possess a likely side entry, your own suit affords much the better chance for successful defense.

Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.
North's 1-club bid here was overcalled by East with 1-Diamond and South injected a bid of 1-No Trump. North took this to 2-No Trumps and South to 3-No Trumps. West led the diamond 9, in response to his partner's bid, and declarer was able to drive out the two missing aces, limiting his losses to those two tricks.

If West had led his own suit, he might have defeated the contract. If South won the first spade and stated on clubs, a spade would have been returned and, if South held up, a third spade would have cleared the suit for West while still retaining the heart A, holding declarer to eight tricks. If so happens, however, that if South elected to drive out the heart A first, West's only entry would have been knocked out and 4-No Trumps could have been made. In any event, West's best choice was his own suit, as East had only overcalled once and South bid no trump despite the bid.

Tomorrow's Problem

Dealer: North. Neither said vulnerable.
Two club tricks were cashed against South's 4-Spade contract and East then switched to a diamond. How should South try to make his contract?

Dr. G. D. Phillips Winner Of Country Club Trophy

Dr. G. D. Phillips, N. Court street, won the flag tournament and the Cryder Memorial mashe at the Pickaway Country Club during a week-end of heavy golfing. Phillips shot an 83 total on rounds of 41-42 and aided with a 12 handicap was able to make his drive on No. 19 before he planted his flag. His journey around the course was farther than any other golfer's during the holiday week-end.

The Cryder mashe, given by the late Sennet Cryder, is emblematic of the Fourth of July championship.

In second place was Willis Liston with 43-41, 84 with a 12 handicap and third was Glen Geib with 44-43, 14 handicap. Liston's flag was planted in the cup on the 15th green while Geib's was a yard away.

The course was crowded Sunday and Monday with perfect weather adding to the golfing interest. More ladies than usual took part in festivities during the holiday.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Dick Bartell of the New York Giants who hit two home runs, and three singles, to bat in eight runs.

SOFTBALL LOOP LEAD AT STAKE IN 6:30 GAME

Eshelman Feeds To Defend Unblemished Slate In Fenton Game

Vantage points from which to watch the softball game this evening between the Eshelman Feeds and Fenton Cleaners will be at a premium since the winner has a chance to gain the first half title. The Eshelman outfit is on top the heap with a clean slate, but the Fenton boys are just a game behind.

The Eshelman boys meet Cain's food market Friday evening in another game that should be interesting. The Fentons have Glitt's food market still before them.

The game is scheduled at 6:30 o'clock and three umpires will be used.

Other games this week include: Wednesday, Circleville Oils vs. Bronzville Jollies; Thursday, Purina Feeds vs. Glitt's food market; Friday, Cain's food market vs. Eshelman Feeds.

Next week's games will wind up the first half race with the Fenton Cleaners and Glitt's food market playing Monday, and Circleville Oils and Blue Ribbon Dairy meeting on Tuesday.

GREYHOUND SETS ANOTHER MARK AT N. RANDALL

CLEVELAND, July 5—(UP)—Greyhound, one of the greatest horses in the history of harness racing, today was credited with his 14th world record.

Before a crowd of 10,000 fans at the North Randall track yesterday, Greyhound was timed in 26 4-5 seconds for the final quarter of his second mile. The old record was 27 seconds flat.

Greyhound also broke two track records as he won the $3,275 Championship Stallion Stake in straight heats. He was timed in 2:01 and 2:00 4-5. The old track record was 2:01 1-4, set in 1909 by Hamburg Belle.

The secondary feature of the day's program, the $1,000 Free-For-All, was won by Billy Direct, which was timed for his first mile in 2:00 3-5.

Other winners were: Prince Regent, driven by Vic Fleming, in the $5,000 Ohio Trotting stake; Balkan Hanover, driven by Short, in the Richman Brothers purse; and Her Ladyship, driven by Sep Palin, in a 2:13 pace race.

A. A. All-Stars to Meet Indianapolis

COLUMBUS, July 5—(UP)—A finely balanced combination of promising young players and tested veterans today formed the American Association's all-star team.

The all-star team will meet the league-leading Indianapolis team at Indianapolis July 14 in the fifth annual contest. Indianapolis won the right to entertain the game by beating Louisville last night and thereby remaining in first place on the deadline set for selection of the playing site.

Of the 18 players selected by the League's Baseball Writers' Association, 10 are stars without major league experience or who have had only short trials, while the other eight have spent one or more full seasons on the "main line."

Balloting was conducted by the unit system, with each city having one vote. The only players to be unanimous choices were Ted Williams, slugging 19-year-old outfielder of the Minneapolis Millers, and Vance Page, ace pitcher of the Indianapolis Indians.

Williams is the league's leading batsman with a mark of .354 and

REDLEGS BEHIND IN SIX GAMES, LOSING GROUND

Pittsburgh Takes Double Victory As Infield Proves Sieve

CINCINNATI, July 5—(UP)—Bill McKechnie, hailed as a "miracle man" a week ago when he had the Cincinnati Reds within one and one-half games of the National league lead, today sought some magic formula that would snap his club out of a slump and halt its decline toward the second division.

The Reds fell eight full games behind the pace-setting New York Giants and to a point only two and one-half contests ahead of the fifth place Boston Bees here yesterday when they dropped both ends of a double-header to the Pittsburgh Pirates by counts of 2 to 1 and 3 to 2.

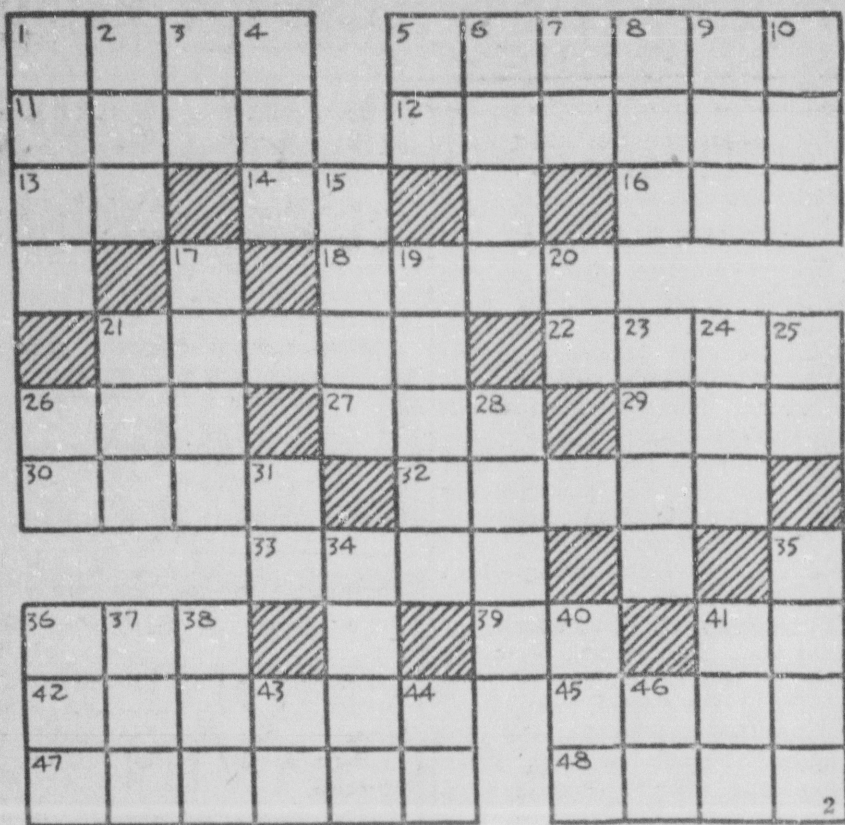

The dual loss increased Cincinnati's losing streak to six games. The contests were the 13th and 14th of the campaign that the Reds have lost by the margin of a single run.

Cincinnati's disastrous slump is attributable directly to the collapse of the Redlegs' inner defense. The club has committed at least one error in each of its last 13 games and in the last four contests has been charged with the amazing total of 14 misplays.

Errors Costly
In the opening encounter yesterday Cincinnati was guilty of one error and in the nightcap committed four costly bobbles.

A ball which rookie Justin Stein, filling in at short for the injured Billy Myers, lost in the sun and let drop for a double led to both of Pittsburgh's runs in the sixth inning of the first game.

ASHVILLE'S BIG CELEBRATION PROVES ANOTHER OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

AWARDS LISTED FOR CONTESTS IN TOWN'S FETE

Perfect Weather Makes Day One Of Best; 10,000 On Hand In Evening

By S. D. FRIDLEY

That big day, the Fourth of July at Ashville, is in the "history book" now and numbered among the past events. The weather could not have been improved on had it been made to order. The crowd of people was not lacking, being at least equal to any had in former years. The parade got away and on the march soon after 11 o'clock and in length was up to standard, but the expensive floats we have had in former years were lacking, but it was not at all bad at that.

The 4-H Club band comprised of members from the different Clubs over the county, under the direction of Miss Bernelle Goodman of Stoutsville, was a splendid organization of fine youngsters and knew their music and marching, and too, assisted in the concert given in the afternoon from the band stand. Our own Community Band under the direction of Fred Hines, always ready to help and to do, did splendidly, the drum major with his lady escorts being a new feature in marching bands and was given a hand.

The antique outfits in the parade were features which attracted much attention. The old cart used by Woodford Ward and his escort was one which the late James Ward, 75 years ago, they said, used in driving to and from school he taught. Gladys Vause and Lulu Kuhlwein with their dilapidated buggy, 50 years ago a fine one owned by Leonard Kuhlwein, proved to be a third prize winner of these comic entries going to Campbell and McClurg and it earned what it got. Had it been possible these three outfits should have been awarded first prizes. The Future Farmers of America and the Duvall Go Getters deserved special mention. The listed winners of parade prizes as listed by the judges, the Revs. Peters and Smith and A. B. Court-right are as follows:

Decorated bicycle: 1, Glenn Malone; 2, Bryan Grant; 3, Conrad Johnson.

Decorated auto: 1, Foreman Motor Sales; 2, Citizens Bank.

Comic entries: 1, Campbell and McClurg; 2, Woodford Ward; 3, Gladys Vause, Lulu Kuhlwein.

Best decorated rig with baby: 1, Sharon Mary Pontius; 2, Judith Ann Fosnaugh.

Best decorated tricycle: 1, Larry Cameron; 2, Richard Fudge.

Best decorated float: 1, Brown Implement Co.; 2, Duvall Go Getters.

In the stunts class: balloon blowing: 1, Billy Cain; same for girls, Muriel Baxter. Boy's cracker eating: 1, Walter Schum; 2, John Justus. For the girls, same, Norma Jean Tucker.

Pop drinking, Charles Pettibone. Nail driving for girls: 1, Florence Swank; 2, Phyllis Litten. Sack race, Joe Pence. Barrel tilting: 1, Don Jenkins; 2, Jas. Miller.

Notes: The Boy Scouts were on the grounds with their first aid tent and equipment and rendered aid to one sick person, a Mrs. Besch. The attendance was equal to last year but the several concessions said they did not do so well. The rides did a good business. The refreshment stand, conducted by the Community Club was kept busy most of the time. It was an orderly, good natured crowd. The fireworks were up to standard and much enjoyed. The evening attendance was easily 10,000. The politicians were plenty busy.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5—(UP)—Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, head of the Indiana Democratic party, undertook today to rescind his informal expulsion of Sen. Frederick Van Nuys and return him to the party fold. Because Van Nuys voted against President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill, Townsend had read him out of the party.

Last night the governor sent a telegram to Van Nuys at his Walloon Lakes, Mich., Summer cottage, inviting him to become a candidate for renomination at the party's state convention next week, July 11 to 12. Inasmuch as Townsend had been considered the chief obstacle in the way of Van Nuys' renomination, observers believed the intra-party strife was ended. Van Nuys had planned to run as an Independent and had been assured the help of 11 Democratic senators who promised to stump for him in Indiana.

His supporters looked on the invitation as assuring him the nomination. Others in the Democratic ranks were waiting to hear his answer.

THE OLD HOME TOWN By STANLEY

Survivors of Civil War Leave for Their Homes

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 5—(UP)—Armies of the North and South turned away from Gettysburg battlefield for the last time today with a note of sadness in their friendly farewells.

Many of the aged men of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United Confederate Veterans had clung tenaciously to their final health that they might see this final reunion on the 75th anniversary of the biggest battle of the Civil War.

They have seen it now—an incomparable reunion in the history of the world wars. Their knotted fingers have clasped the hands of other old men they once fought on these same fields. They have heard President Roosevelt call on the nation to struggle eternally for peace through democracy and have seen the prowess of the most modern military machines.

But perhaps most impressive to the men in faded blue and gray was the unveiling of a new monument on Oak Hill, where, henceforth, a flame will burn eternally above the battlefield as a symbol of the nation's peace and unity.

May Be Last Meeting

There was much of that spirit of friendship and peace in the farewells that were said today by men who knew they have small chance to see each other again. "God bless you" and "Good bye" were spoken in the same breath time and again as the armies parted with sorrow as sincere, if not as tragic, as on that day three-quarters of a century ago when the army of northern Virginia, beaten back on Cemetery Ridge, turned toward Hagerstown leaving the Army of the Potomac so battered it could not pursue.

"This has been a glorious occasion," Gen. John P. Claypool, commander of the U. C. V., said as he and Mr. Overton Mennet, commander of the G. A. R., strode arm in arm to the headquarters of the Pennsylvania state commission and the army forces to say goodbyes.

"We of the Confederate army warmly thank every person who has had a part in providing this great reunion and congratulate them on the manner in which it has been handled."

"I want to echo General Claypool's sentiments," Mennet said. "We have been given every courtesy and consideration. There has never before been an occasion like this—and there may never be another."

The town of Gettysburg began a quick movement back to normal as the first of the veterans moved out, with the main force scheduled to start evacuation late this afternoon.

F. D. R. PREPARES TO START TOUR THROUGH NATION

Long Journey To Carry President Through Many States

SPEECHES SIGNIFICANT

Executive Expected To Talk For Liberals

WASHINGTON, July 5—(UP)—President Roosevelt is preparing today for a trans-continental invasion of primary election battlefields in the dual role of party leader and chief executive and as the champion of liberals generally against the conservatives of all parties.

His precise strategy is not known. But political observers considered it significant that among the states visited will be half a dozen in which the New Deal has vital interests. The journey, beginning July 7, will take Mr. Roosevelt into Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Georgia, and South Carolina—the latter two after a fishing vacation from which the President will return by way of the Panama Canal.

Formal appearances are not scheduled in all states through which the Roosevelt special will pass, but local statesmen have a way of persuading presidential trains to pause for rear platform appearances which were not planned when the trip originally was laid out.

Candidacies at Stake

Uppermost in Mr. Roosevelt's mind as he prepares to depart probably is the welfare of 100 per cent New Deal primary candidates seeking renomination and the opportunity his journey will offer to re-state to the voters some of the issues on which he and congress have differed. Insofar as he undertakes to particularize issues for this campaign, Mr. Roosevelt may again emphasize to those who hear him:

1. His determination to raise again the issue of reorganization of the executive departments of government which was voted down by the house in the session which ended last month.
2. New Deal plans to deal with monopoly, monopolistic practices and high prices.
3. The administration's desire for regional planning legislation for better use of land and water resources.
4. And possibly his determination to raise the corporation surplus and capital gains tax questions again in an effort to restore the drastic provisions which congress this year eliminated from the revenue act.

Mr. Roosevelt roughly sketched the outline of his personal plans for the 1938 campaign in a radio chat last month in which he said he could not intervene in primary or election contests in his capacity as President of the United States, but felt free and duty-bound to take a position in some instances in his role as leader of the Democratic party. In that chat the President called on voters of all parties to support liberal candidates against conservatives who were tagged with a new definition—copperheads.

His statement generally was interpreted to mean that the trip across the country would be heavily colored by politics and possibly become notable as a part of what some adverse critics of the administration term the "purge" of conservative Democrats. The "purge" so far has not amounted to much. Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins undertook to oppose Sen. Guy B. Gillette, D. Ia., for renomination. Gillette was among senators opposing Mr. Roosevelt's 1937 judiciary reorganization bill. But Iowa Democrats endorsed Gillette overwhelmingly.

SIX MORE JEWS SLAIN IN HOLY LAND RIOTING

JERUSALEM, July 5—(UP)—Six Jews were killed and four wounded today in a renewal of attacks and counter-attacks between Jews and Arabs which led some observers to fear a civil war.

Curfew regulations were imposed again and British troops and police throughout Palestine were on the alert for new terrorism after an outbreak of disorders in which nine Arabs were killed and 13 wounded.

The prospect of some form of civil war might ultimately compel Great Britain, which holds a mandate over the Holy Land, to take decisive action, it was said.

Today's attacks were regarded as reprisals for Jewish attacks on Arabs. Four were killed at Einvered, a Jewish settlement near Tel Aviv. Four others were wounded at Roshpina, in North Palestine. A Jewish father and son were shot and killed in the old city of Jerusalem.
